Second Life

Second Life offers users a quick and easy escape from the real world. Many residents see this as one of the main benefits of using the site. Spending time on Second Life allows them to escape the stresses and problems of their daily lives. If a user is having a stressful day at work, she can visit a beautiful island, go skiing, or even fly to another planet during her lunch break. If she is tired at the end of a long day, she can go to a classical music concert while dinner is cooking and never leave home. Users can even visit other planets to help them forget their "first-life" problems for a little while.

?Read the sentence. According to the text, is it a summary or a personal response

*.Second Life residents like getting away from their "first-life" problems

Having a big family makes children learn to be more helpful. _____. For example, children know cleaning the house will go faster if they help their parents. The house gets clean faster because everyone cleans a small part. Then the parents will be able to spend time doing more fun things with the kids. Second, children learn to help each other more. Older children often help their younger brothers and sisters when their parents are busy. For example, an older sister can help a younger sister get ready for school. Older brothers and sisters can also help younger siblings with their homework. There are many benefits to having a large family. When there are many children in a family, every one learns _____.

*.an important lesson about helping one another

First of all, older children have more responsibilities.

First, children end up helping their parents more.

They think helping their parents is fun.
