My holidays

Michelle Giaquinto is from Australia. At the moment, she is working as a cook in a vegetarian restaurant in Italy. She has travelled to over 30 countries, including Mexico, Thailand, Nepal, Pakistan, Morocco, Guatemala, Turkey and many countries in Africa and Europe.

1 _____
It's difficult to choose the most beautiful place I've visited, as every country has its personal bests. But I have very happy memories of the giant Himalayan mountains I walked through for three weeks in Nepal.

5 _____
I still haven't visited Indonesia, a country with a very interesting culture and excellent diving sites to explore.

2 _____
I stayed in a beautiful little 'riad', or guesthouse, in Marrakech, Morocco. It wasn't very big, but it had a green courtyard with a fountain in the middle. The colourful tiles everywhere gave it an exotic feel, too.

3 _____
The strangest thing I've tried were the fried crickets on the street in Bangkok, Thailand. You get three or four on a stick, and they're not bad – sweet and crunchy.

6 _____
Australia has so many interesting places to visit, as it's so large and diverse. But my favourites are the sights along the Great Barrier Reef, North Queensland. I also love the big, open spaces of our deserts and National Parks, especially Uluru National Park.

4 _____
I have always been very lucky in my travels, but someone stole my bag on a train when I was in India. Getting very ill in a lonely part of Pakistan wasn't very nice, either.

English at work. I learned English at school, of course, and when I was a student at university, I spent six months working for an international bank in Germany. That was a very good experience because the official language at work was English. I think my English is good now, but I know my pronunciation isn't perfect – I think the th sounds are very difficult. But I don't think this is a big problem – my colleagues understand me! One grammar mistake I often make is using the present perfect instead of the past simple, like I have played tennis yesterday instead of I played tennis yesterday. I think I need to practise more!
