Think Before You Toss

by Ted Carson

² For some people, our appetite for new products contributes to the problem. We are addicted to buying new things. As consumers, we want the latest clothes, the best TVs, and cell phones with the newest features. Companies tell us to buy, buy and buy. Advertisements persuade us that newer is better and that we will be happier with the latest products. The result is that we throw away useful possessions to make room for new ones. In the U.S., when consumers get rid of electronics, 80 percent of them go to a dump. Only about 18 percent of electronics are recycled. This is a very low percentage.

³ Some people say that to lessen the amount of trash and to protect the environment we should recycle materials such as paper, plastic, and glass. Moreover, we need to repair our possessions instead of throwing them away. Furthermore, we need to think about how to spend. Repairing our possessions instead of buying new ones is a better spending habit and takes care of the environment.

⁴ Some people say that it is less expensive to buy new things than to repair old ones. They say that it costs more to repair something than to buy a new one. You can't always fix your old one. Advances in technology make new products cheaper and better all the time. The benefit of increasing production and buying something new is preferred to repairing old things.

⁵ People are throwing away more trash than ever before. I live in the U.S. and we produce a lot of trash per person. In 2000, we produced about 4.6 tons of trash per person. However, people did not produce as much trash in the past, so there is no problem. However, it is better to give to poor people than to pollute the environment.

of throwing them away. As consumers, we should think about how to fix something to make it last. Furthermore, we need to rethink our attitudes about spending. Repairing our possessions and changing our spending habits may reduce the amount of trash and take care of the environment.

⁴ Some people support the idea of throwing things away. They say that because of technology, it costs less to make items, so they sell for less. Sometimes it costs more to fix an item than to replace it. Therefore, consumers naturally decide to pick up a new one. You can buy a new phone cheaply, so why fix your old one? They also say that thanks to advances in technology, products are getting better and cheaper all the time, especially electronics. The benefit of increased features makes people prefer to buy something new. Therefore, throwing things away is preferred by some people.

⁵ People are throwing out more trash than ever before. I live in the United States, where the amount of trash per person nearly doubled from 1960 to 2000. However, people have more money than they did in the past, and products are cheaper. I think there is no problem with throwing away things. However, it is better if these things are recycled, or given to poor people. This way we can look after the environment and buy the newest smartphones!

TO: Servers

FROM: Rayan Al Arabi, Dining Room Manager

RE: New touch-screen ordering

At Madinah Fried Chicken, we are known as a cool, trendy place for people who want some great fried chicken. We are always looking for better ways to serve our customers and make their experience unique. Next month, we will make a change so that we can really stand out and introduce touch-screen ordering which is also known as "digital dining." As an employee, you need to know about this new technology.

This is how touch-screen ordering works. Each table will have its own touch-screen computer. Customers can view the menu on the screen, including descriptions and photos. To start, the customer inserts his credit card and puts in his order by touching the screen. Then the program automatically makes suggestions for additional items to order, such as appetizers and drinks. When the customer is ready, he pushes a button to send the order directly to the computer in the kitchen. Won't that make your job as a server easier? All

A: First of all, with digital dining, customers can order quickly. We will be able to serve more customers in less time. Also, the computer program will automatically suggest additional items to order. Research shows that when this happens, customers order more. We estimate that customer bills will be 15 to 20 percent higher. With more customers ordering more items, you will earn more money in tips. In addition, you won't have to repeat the same information over and over like a robot. Finally, customers can't blame you for errors in their order—they place their orders themselves! Won't that be nice?

Q: Will customers really want to do their own ordering?

A: Yes, I think that most of our customers will love it! If a diner prefers the traditional service, we will

All you have to do is bring the food to the table when it's ready! Finally, paying the bill is quick and easy because the customer can do it himself. This exciting new technology will improve our customers' dining experience and increase your tips!

Now you may want to know how this change will affect you. Maybe you are afraid of losing your job. Let me assure you, you won't. In fact, you will be able to serve more customers every night! These high-tech computers not only look cool, they decrease the number of tasks you have to do. Hopefully, this means that you can serve more tables without feeling stressed!

Here are some questions and answers:

Q: What are the benefits for me as a server?

We will automatically suggest additional items to order. Research shows that when this happens, customers order more. We estimate that customer bills will be 15 to 20 percent higher. With more customers ordering more items, you will earn more money in tips. In addition, you won't have to repeat the same information over and over like a robot. Q: Will customers really want to do their own ordering?

A: Yes, I think that most of our customers will love it! If a diner prefers the traditional service, we will provide it. But these monitors will be so much fun that everyone will want to use them! The photographs will be fantastic and the descriptions will be mouth-watering. As you know, most of our customers are tech-savvy, and they enjoy interacting with the latest gadgets!

Q: What other features will these touch-screen have?

A: They'll have entertaining games and high-speed internet access. Customers can send messages to friends and post photos of themselves at the table.

We will be having an employee training session next Tuesday from 9:30-11:00 a.m. to show you how digital dining works. I look forward to presenting this fabulous new system to you!

Question 3 :

Trouble with Technology

by David Palmer

MONDAY, APRIL 11

¹ Technology is great. However, there are some technologies that drive me crazy! Recently, I tried to speak to my bank, so I called them. Of course, I didn't get to talk to a real person. Instead, an automated voice recording asked me a lot of questions. After a few minutes the machine hung up on me. Arrrr! When I called back, the recording said, "We're sorry, all agents are busy assisting other customers and are unable to take your call." I had to wait for half an hour to talk to a real person. While I was on hold for a few minutes a recording played an advertisement. I was annoyed and angry. I felt so frustrated!

² The new self-service checkout system in the supermarket also drives me crazy! With this new device I can scan my groceries myself instead of waiting in a checkout line. However, for some strange reason the machines seem to hate me. They never work well, and when I use them, everyone looks at me as if I'm an idiot. I wish we could go back to the good old days when there were real people to help us.

³ Now they have new technology at my favorite restaurant. It is really stressful! Each table has a tabletop computer monitor with a touch screen. I can view the menu on the monitor, including descriptions and photos. I insert my bank card and put in my order by touching the screen. My order is sent direct

I can view the menu on the monitor, including descriptions and photos. I insert my bank card and put in my order by touching the screen. My order is sent direct to the kitchen. This sounds good, however, last week, when my food came, it was so awful. I was furious!

4 Yesterday, I tried to register online for my second-year classes at university which began next month. However, the website didn't work! Some students who were in my class last year went to the registrar. I live very far from the university, so I kept trying to register online. Now all the classes I need are full. I don't know who to blame.

5 Speaking to a machine is very frustrating. I think I would have been happier living a hundred years ago. This was before we had all of this amazing, self-service technology. Computers think that all of technology serves us best, but actually it wastes us. I believe people do a better job, and if you've got a problem, you can talk to them about it. I hope computers realize this and change their systems.

¹ It is very difficult for family businesses to survive. In the United States, about 66 percent of all businesses fail. However, 70 percent of the owners can pass them down to their sons and daughters. There are many reasons why family businesses fail. One of the biggest reasons is that the family members fight, and the business suffers.

² The Dassler family is an interesting example. Rudolf and Adolf Dassler were brothers in Germany. They owned a shoe company called Dassler Brothers Shoe Company. They disagreed about many things. In 1948, the brothers started their own companies. Rudolf Dassler called his company Puma, and Adolf called his company Adidas. Today, Puma and Adidas are successful companies, but the Dassler family is no longer together.

³ Another example is the fight between the world's richest brothers. When their father passed down his company to them, the brothers had many disagreements. The company depends on the family's strengths and talents. However, family disagreements can cause problems to the workplace. The brothers did not communicate their problems together. As a result, the company collapsed.

⁴ Family businesses also fail because of changing times. Fifty years ago, there were many small family-owned stores. But today, small family-owned stores cannot compete with large chain stores. This is another challenge in a family business. A successful company must adapt to changing times. Younger generations may not want this lifestyle. They may want to work for a large company.

Which inference can you make?

- They went to university in America.
- Their father is dead.
- They were poor when they were young.
- Anil bought Adidas, and Misha bought Puma.

also bring their weaknesses and personal problems to the workplace. The brothers did not communicate well, and they were not good at solving problems together. As a result, the company collapsed.

⁴ Family businesses also fail because of changing times. Fifty years ago, 18% of families owned local grocery stores. But today, small family-owned stores cannot compete with large supermarket chains. The way of life is another challenge in a family business. A successful company requires hard work and long hours. Younger generations may not want this lifestyle. They may want more freedom.

⁵ Many families dream of passing down their business to the next generation, but this requires careful planning and preparation. All employees, especially family members, need to have clear responsibilities. Also, they should be realistic about the dreams and goals of the younger generation. Family businesses can be very successful because of strong family ties. However, to succeed for more than one generation, families need to manage their businesses carefully. Aggressive family members, who like to fight, need to try to work together. In my opinion, every family business can be successful if they work together.

Challenges of Running a Family Business

More than 85% of family businesses survive for more than 20 years. However, many owners don't plan for their own exit strategy for family business.

Family business owners face many challenges. One of the biggest is the lack of communication between family members. This can lead to conflicts and disagreements over the business.

Another challenge is the lack of professional management. Many family businesses are run by family members who may not have the necessary skills to run a business successfully.

The Bancroft family is an interesting example. For 155 years, the Bancroft family owned The Wall Street Journal. It is one of the most famous newspapers in the United States. But there were many family problems. They did not communicate well, and they disagreed about many things. One person said that they couldn't even agree on where to go for lunch! The younger family members wanted the business to be more profitable. The older members thought the quality of the paper was more important than making money. In addition, the family let people outside of the family manage the newspaper. They did not take part in many important decisions. Finally, in 2007, all 33 of the Bancroft family members agreed to sell the company. Although the business had lasted several generations, the Bancrofts eventually had to sell their company because they did not manage it well. In the end, many of their family relationships suffered.

Many families dream of passing down their business to the next generation, but this requires careful planning and preparation. Good management is a key to success. All employees, especially family members, need to have clear responsibilities. Family business owners should think about how decisions are made. Also, they should be realistic about the dreams and goals of the younger generation. Strong family ties are the most important reason for family businesses to be successful. ¹ It seems very difficult for family businesses to survive in Australia nowadays. There are about 1 million family businesses there. This is about 80 percent of all Australian businesses. However, 75 percent of these family businesses fail before the owners can pass them down to their sons and daughters. There are many reasons why family businesses fail.

² One of the biggest reasons is that the family members fight. The Miller family is an interesting example. David and Martin Miller were famous Australian brothers. They owned a furniture company called Miller Brothers Furniture Factory. They did not communicate well, and they disagreed about many things. In 1984, the brothers stopped working together and started their own companies. David Miller called his company Wood Art Furniture, and Martin Miller called his company Tropitone. Today, Wood Art and Tropitone are successful companies, but the brothers' relationship suffered.

³ Another example is the fight between the world's richest brothers, John and Robert Richards. After their father passed down his company to them, the brothers

FAMILY BUSINESS PARTNERSHIP

The Mubarak Family Business

It started with the courage of a young man, Ahmad Al Mubarak. Born in the small farming town of Tabuk in Saudi Arabia, Al Mubarak was determined to start his own business. To do this, he moved from Saudi Arabia to Kuwait and began a trading business. It was 1936, and he was only 23 years old. At first, he traded mostly food items and textiles such as material for clothing and bedding. In the 1940s, he started his company. Soon, he decided to expand

Think Before You Toss

² Our appetite for new products contributes to the problem. We are addicted to buying new things. As consumers, we want the latest clothes, the best TVs, and cell phones with the newest features. Companies tell us to buy, buy and buy. Advertisements persuade us that newer is better and that we will be happier with the latest products. The result is that we throw away useful possessions to make room for new ones. In the U.S., when consumers get rid of electronics, 80 percent of them go to a dump. Only about 20 percent of electronics are recycled. This is a very low percentage.

Mad Anthony

in Praise of the throwaway society

JANUARY 26, 2015

1 Yesterday, I heard someone use the phrase throwaway society, which got me thinking. Usually, the term throwaway society is used as a way of saying that we are too materialistic. It means that too much of our stuff today is poor quality instead of being built to last.

2 I see things the opposite way. The fact that we live throwaway society is not a sign that things are worse than they used to be. It is a sign that things are better than they have ever been. True, we don't repair things as much as we used to. But that's because we do not have to and don't want to, not because we can't. And it's better that way.

3 I say this because being able to replace instead of repair shows that people are wealthy. What would you rather have: an old repaired laptop or the latest model? A pair of socks with the hole patched or a fresh pair? Some people think that products today are less dependable than they used to be. But most people would rather have something with a newer design, and they vote with their wallets.

4 I think there are three reasons for this. First, lower prices. Today, because of technology, it costs less to make items, so they sell for less. When the price difference is small or when it costs more to fix an item than to replace it, consumers naturally decide to pick up a new one. Second, increased wealth. People have more money than they did in the past, and because of lower prices, they can afford more things. A tow hundred years ago, most people had one or two sets of clothes. Those clothes were valuable and expensive and formed a significant part of their budget. Now, you can get a nice sweater for a few dollars. It isn't expensive at all. When that sweater gets a hole in it, you toss it and buy a new one because you can afford to vaccinations, if needed. There is a medical clinic at the airport for sick pilgrims. For pilgrims travelling within Saudi Arabia, officials check their vaccination records and make sure people have access to date on all required vaccines.

5 Third, increased features. Thanks to advances in technology, products are getting better all the time, especially electronics. There is a good chance that the latest model includes some cool features that didn't exist when your old one was made. Now, you can get a high-definition? digital camera that is small enough to fit in your hand. You can get cell phones that have everything from email to video to GPS3. In fact, I hardly ever use my phone for an actual phone call anymore because it can do so many other wonderful things. You see, the benefit of increased features is another reason to buy something new. So throw something out today! The throwaway society shows us how good things are.

Another important Saudi strategy is to use technology to track the outbreak of diseases. With many new technologies, experts are able to immediately report a person with a disease. That information quickly goes to all health officials, and organizers can take steps to control the outbreak. During a mass gathering, instant reporting is extremely important. During the 2009 Hajj, there was a global outbreak of the H1N1 bird flu pandemic. Hajj organizers used technology to track and report cases of the flu. They used a cell phone system to collect information, and the Internet to report it instantly. Organizers also worked with the World Health Organization (WHO) to use rapid testing and to quarantine infected pilgrims. This was able to control the outbreak and prevent its spread to thousands of pilgrims.

"It seems that the field of health and mass gatherings is growing. This is a very new area of medicine, and international cooperation is a key ingredient. The Saudi Ministry of Health has recently created a new diploma course in Mass Gathering and Disaster Medicine, based in Jeddah. The goal is to develop an international center for sharing knowledge. Khalid Mujeeb from the Ministry of Health said that "multinational approaches to public health challenges are likely to become major factors in global health diplomacy and bringing the West a little closer to the East." International cooperation will help limit the spread of disease, and lead to better health around the world.

Flu FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions)

Flu season is coming! Are you prepared?
Here are answers to your questions!

What is the flu?

- 1 The flu, short for influenza, is a virus that passes easily from person to person. Every year, millions of people miss work and school because of the seasonal flu. Seasonal flu exists worldwide. Usually the flu season is in the winter months, but in warm climates, the flu occurs during the rainy season.

What are the symptoms of the flu?

- 2 Flu symptoms include fever, cough, sore throat, body aches, headache, chills, and fatigue¹. These symptoms usually show up quickly, developing within three to six hours of exposure to the virus. With the flu, you may start the day feeling fine, only to end up feeling terrible a few hours later.

What's the difference between the flu and a cold?

3 Both are respiratory² illnesses, but they are caused by different viruses. Although the symptoms can be similar, flu symptoms are more severe and include a high fever and body aches. Cold symptoms include a runny or stuffy³ nose and a cough. You may have a slight fever with a cold, but in general, cold symptoms are milder and only last about seven days. The flu can last up to two weeks. It is much more likely to develop into a serious illness and require hospitalization.

Who gets the flu?

4 The seasonal flu is very common all over the world. In the United States, 5 to 20 percent of the population gets the flu every year. After you have had the flu, you have immunity⁴ to that virus. You will not get that particular virus again. However, new flu viruses appear every year. Even if you have the flu this year, you will not have immunity to next year's virus. Some people get the flu every year.

Why is the flu dangerous?

5 The flu is especially dangerous for children aged 2 and under, adults over 65 years old, and people in poor health. These people may not be able to fight the virus and can become extremely sick. Every year in the U.S., there are approximately 36,000 deaths related to the seasonal flu.

How does the flu spread?

6 Coughing or sneezing spreads flu viruses from person to person. A virus can live in a tiny drop of liquid from a cough for several hours,

² respiratory: related to breathing

³ stuffy: blocked, making it difficult to breathe

⁴ immunity: the ability to not get a disease

⁵ vaccine: a medicine given to people to protect them from a particular disease and it can live on a surface such as a table for up to 24 hours. A person can infect others before flu symptoms even develop and up to five days after becoming sick. You can pass the flu to someone else before you know you are sick.

What's a flu epidemic?

7 A flu epidemic is when many people have the flu at the same time, and the number of infected people increases rapidly. Worldwide, annual flu epidemics result in about 3 to 5 million cases of severe illness, and about 250,000 to 500,000 deaths.

How can I avoid getting the flu?

8 Many people get a flu vaccine⁵ before the flu season starts. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says that flu vaccines can prevent 70 to 90 percent of infections in healthy people under age 65. However, each year there are new, unknown viruses. Therefore, scientists must develop new vaccines each year. It can take six months to a year to develop these vaccines. For some viruses, there is no vaccine.

What else can I do?

- 9 There are many things you can do to stay healthy and prevent the spread of the flu.
- Wash your hands often with soap and water or a liquid hand cleaner. Hand washing is the best way to prevent the spread of flu viruses.
 - Cover your nose and mouth with a tissue when you cough or sneeze. Throw the tissue in the trash after you use it. If you don't have a tissue, cover your mouth with your arm or shirtsleeve instead of your hands.
 - Avoid touching your eyes, nose, or mouth. Viruses can spread this way.
 - Avoid sick people.
