The Green Team's Recycling Success

Last year, the students at King Abdullah Middle School started a new project called the "Green Team." Their goal was to help the environment by reducing the amount of trash the school produced. The team placed special blue boxes in every classroom and the cafeteria for recycling plastic bottles and paper. They also made posters to teach everyone about the importance of recycling. At first, it was difficult to get everyone to participate, but the Green Team gave presentations in every class. Slowly, more students and teachers started using the recycling boxes correctly.

To track their progress, the Green Team weighed all the recycling they collected each month for a year. The graph below shows their results. The team was very happy to see that the amount of recycling increased over time, except for the summer months, July and August. Their hard work paid off! The school principal was so impressed that she awarded the Green Team a special certificate. Now, the project is a regular part of the school, and the students feel proud of their contribution to the planet.
