Most studies have highlighted the role of parents as active agents in the career development of their children. Parents want their children to opt for a career they know well about, but what their children want or aspire to become can be completely different. Many parents said they had misguided their children into choosing a career of their choice. It is very important not to burden our children with unreal expectations. There are a few factors that are of great importance in the career selection process. The child's aptitude is a mirror of his/her personality, strengths, and weaknesses. Hence, a designed aptitude test can reveal a lot of information regarding the child that can help in taking a well-informed career selection. It is very difficult to spend your life working in a field that you are not interested in. Courses leading towards a desired career should be found easily for the young to enable them to make right decisions about their future. Modern societies need professionals in every field: utility workers, garbage collectors, farmers, nurses, doctors, engineers, teachers, professors and many others. Furthermore, demotivation might have a negative impact on the child's mental health when rejecting all of his/her ideas.. Most people have dreams of future jobs and there's no limit to what this could be, but we can't be absolutely certain about our career choices.

Emily had been working as a math teacher in a primary school for about four years and she was getting really fed up. The kids were really badly behaved and rude, and it was really hard to control them. Every day was really stressed and awful. Emily was working every evening making homework and preparing lessons and she just went to bed exhausted and really depressed every night. It just wasn't the right job for her. Then one day she read in the newspaper that there aren't enough plumbers in the country. Too many people are going to university and not enough people are training to be plumbers! And she said jokingly to her friend, "I'll be a plumber. I'll earn more money and I won't have to deal with those kids every day!"

At first, it was just a joke, but then she started thinking about it seriously. You have practical problems to solve every day, which she likes. You start work early, but when you go home at four or five o'clock that's it, you can forget about it until the next day. No more nights lying awake worrying about it! She's the only woman on the course. Her colleagues are all male, but they're fine. They make a few jokes, mostly because she used to be a teacher, but it's all very friendly. Sometimes you meet older people who think you can't do the job because you're a woman, and that's a real pain, but compared to her classes at the school where she used to work it's really no problem at all!
