Teacher Pages just for you! Welcome to Reading Comprehension Skills and Strategies

About this Series

This unique series is specially created for you by Saddleback Educational Publishing, as an exciting supplement to reinforce and extend your classroom reading curriculum. Reading Comprehension Skills and Strategies can easily be integrated into basic reading curricula as additional reading lessons: as stand-alone strategy and skill instructional lessons; as across-the-curriculum lessons; or as activities for students with special projects, interests, or abilities.

This series is based on the most current research and thought concerning the teaching of reading comprehension. This series not only sharpens traditional reading comprehension skills (main idea, story plot, topic sentence, sequencing, etc.), but it also reinforces the critical reading comprehension strategies that encourage your students to use prior knowledge, experiences, careful thought, and evaluation to help them decide how to practically apply what they know to all reading situations.

Traditional comprehension skills recently have been woven into the larger context of strategy instruction. Today, literacy instruction emphasizes learning strategies—those approaches that coordinate the various reading and writing skills and prior knowledge to make sense to the learner. Our goal in this series is to provide you and your students with the most up-to-date reading comprehension support, while teaching basic skills that can be tested and evaluated.

Reading Comprehension Strategies

- vocabulary knowledge
- activating prior knowledge
- pre-reading—previewing and predicting
- previewing and predicting text
- mental imaging
- self-questioning
- summarizing
- semantic mapping

Saddleback Educational Publishing promotes the development of the whole child with particular emphasis on combining solid skill instruction with creativity and imagination. This series gives your students a variety of opportunities to apply reading comprehension strategies as they read, while reinforcing basic reading comprehension skills. In addition, we designed this series to help you make an easy transition between levels (grades 4, 5, and 6) in order to reinforce or enhance needed skill development for individual students.

About this Book

Reading Comprehension Skills and Strategies is designed to reinforce and extend the reading skills of your students. The fun, high-interest fiction and non-fiction selections will spark the interest of even your most reluctant reader. The book offers your students a variety of reading opportunities—reading for pleasure, reading to gather information, and reading to perform a task. A character on each page prompts the student to apply one of the strategies to the reading selection and includes a relevant comprehension skill activity.

Choosing Instructional Approaches

You can use the pages in this book for independent reinforcement or extension, whole group lessons, pairs, or small cooperative groups rotating through an established reading learning center. You may choose to place the activities in a center and reproduce the answer key for self-checking. To ensure the utmost flexibility, the process for managing this is left entirely up to you because you know what works best in your classroom.

Assessment

Assessment and evaluation of student understanding and ability is an ongoing process. A variety of methods and strategies should be used to ensure that the student is being assessed and evaluated in a fair and comprehensive manner. Always keep in mind that the assessment should take into consideration the opportunities the student had to learn the information and practice the skills presented. The strategies for assessment are left for you to determine and are dependent on your students and your particular instructional plan. You will find a Scope & Sequence chart at the back of this book to assist you as you develop your assessment plan.

Learning the meaning of some prefixes and adding them to root words adds lots of new words to your vocabulary. Now, that's cool!

Directions: Add a prefix to each root word to make a new word. Then write a sentence using each new word.

Find and circle all the sequence and time signal words in the story below. Then, write what happens in the story next to each signal word below. Finally, draw a picture to illustrate the story on the back of this page.

Many kids have fish or cats or parakeets for pets, but I prefer to have a blue-tailed, lizard-scaled, fire-breathing dragon. Initially, when I laid eyes on Smokey, I was more than a bit scared. Terrified is a better adjective to describe the angst in my gut. Smokey has piercing red eyes and teeth sharper than any razor or dagger edge. Next, I assumed my life was about to go up in flames. But then he smiled at me and blew a few puffs of harmless smoke. After that, my fear subsided and we became instant friends. Dad said I could keep Smokey as long as he didn't set fire to the house.

Smokey and I have lots of fun roaming the seven seas together, with me perched high upon his crooked tail. At night he sleeps under the huge magnolia tree in our yard. However, nosy Mrs. Dullpepper got uptight when she learned I had a pet dragon. I was going to have Smokey warm her up a little, but Dad forbade it. Then I got a great idea. Smokey and I went door to door to share his services as a barbecue starter. His fire is so strong he can start a blaze from fifty yards. Finally, everyone agreed that Smokey was a fine neighbor. Smokey and I spent a lot of the summer at barbecues, until we decided to start charging for services. Funny, no one wanted to pay. That's just as well. Chasing pirates across the seven seas is more fun anyway!

Directions: Read the story and underline the signal words. When you are done, write the story from Red Riding Hood's point of view.

Hey, first let me introduce myself. My name is B.B. Wolf. Now, many of you have heard of me before. I got mixed up with that little girl with the red hood. Everyone believed her sappy, one-sided tale. As if I would want a basket full of bland cookies—whoever heard of cookies without chocolate chips?

When the “real” story gets out about what happened that day in the forest, suddenly I’ll be the most famous canine in the world! I can see it now; immediately I’ll be mobbed by fans and photographers—much like a movie star. I’ll have to lurk around corners and wear dark glasses when I go out.

However, once that crazy kid gets her story straight, I must admit I will enjoy being famous. At last everyone will know the hero I was that day, gallantly escorting Red and her yucky cookies through the dangerous forest to Grandma’s house. Finally, it will be cleared up once and for all that I do not wear Grandma clothes! At last I will be able to enjoy the recognition and fame I deserve.

King Tutankhamen

King Tutankhamen was only nineteen when he died. It is thought that his enemies murdered him. Compared to other Pharaohs, his tomb was modest.

Ancient Egyptians believed their Pharaohs to be gods. When they died, Pharaohs were carefully embalmed. This preserved the King's body. The mummified corpses were put away in fancy tombs and surrounded with all the things they would need in the afterlife. The tombs were then carefully sealed. Egypt's best builders designed the tombs to keep out thieves. In some cases, heavy boulders were used to block passageways. Sometimes false doorways and hidden rooms were designed to confuse robbers. Finally, a curse was placed on the entrance.

Most of these precautions failed. In ancient times grave robbers found their way into the tombs. They unsealed the doors, hammered their way around the boulders, and found the secrets of the hidden rooms. No one knows for sure if any of the thieves suffered from the wrath of a curse. However, many legends say they did.

Similes describe a person, place, thing, or action with colorful or visual words.

Simile: Sam is eating like it is going out of style!

Translation: Sam is eating a lot and he is eating very quickly.

It was raining cats and dogs, and foolish Ralph had left his jacket in the park. “You are dumber than a post!” teased Ralph’s sister Sarah. “But my love for you is like a red, red, rose. So, I’ll help you find your jacket in the rain! Anyway, it has the house keys in the pocket and I would welcome shelter—I’m soaked like a sponge.”

Ralph and Sarah raced between the raindrops toward the park to look for the jacket. Neither of them had eaten since lunch, and they were feeling as weak as kittens. “I’m so hungry I could eat a horse,” moaned Ralph.

“I feel like a wet rag,” said Sarah, wiping the rain from her face. “If you would have given me the keys like I asked, we wouldn’t be in this pickle!” Ralph felt bad. He knew Sarah was right. He should have given her the keys an hour ago when she wanted to go home. Instead, he played the bossy big brother and made her wait. Just as they reached the park, the heavens opened! Ralph spotted his jacket and grabbed it before a big gust of wind could send it sailing. Ralph and Sarah ran home as fast as they could. Their mother was waiting for them at the door with dry towels and hot chocolate. She’d gotten home from work early. Ralph gave Sarah a sarcastic grin.

“Don’t even say it!” warned Sarah. “Or I’ll be tempted to beat you like a drum!” They both started to laugh.

Garth Gantuan was  a large man. He was the largest man in Flogenville, and though you wouldn't guess by looking at his massive frame, Garth was also  a very fast runner. Garth was married to Maben Sue; her daddy was  the wealthiest man in Flogenville and as such, Maben Sue was used to getting everything she wanted.

One day Garth arrived home after a hard day's work at the factory in Flogenville to find his dear bride soggy with tears. "What's the matter, my sugar plum?" cooed Garth, wrapping his massive hands around his wife to comfort her.

"I'm not feeling well," she sniffled. "There is a contest being held to see who is the best runner in the state. The winner gets a new convertible. I need that car so I can feel better—you see I need to be  unconfined." Maben Sue was using a device that was  ancient—tears—to get Garth to race and win her the car.

"My darling, I didn't know you felt that way. Of course I will win you the car. Whatever it takes to make you content." Garth truly loved his wife, and Maben Sue didn't give it a thought that Garth might suspect her of being cunning.

The race was set for the following Saturday. When the gun sounded, Garth took off with a blast. Faster and faster he ran until the spectators could see only a speck in the distance. Maben Sue was presented the car, though no one ever heard from Garth again. Some say he just finally got smart and ran away from Maben Sue.

It was midnight when I got the call on my purple pocket cell phone, which I always leave positioned on my nightstand. The ring jolted me out of bed. Grabbing my flannel footed-pajama bottoms, I answered the phone. It was my neighbor, Mrs. Hooper; she was hysterical. I could barely make out what she was saying amid the ranting sobs. It sounded something like, "I'm a hog sissy."

"Well, Mrs. Hooper, that may be true, but isn't it an odd hour of the night to call me with such a confession?" I rubbed the sleep out of my ears and listened harder.

"My dog's missing!" She repeated...actually, squealed. "You must find him immediately. I will pay you $100." Money appeals to my sympathetic side—so I threw a gray trench coat over my pajamas and headed out the door. I was at Mrs. Hooper's house in 1.4 minutes.

"Where did you last see the canine?" I inquired, already canvassing the room for clues.

"Snuggles was next to me on the pillow when I fell asleep at exactly 11:47. There was a loud sawing noise and I awoke with a start—I noticed Snuggles was gone. I was terrified. I panicked. That's when I called you at precisely midnight."

"Hmmmmmm," I thought, "Time is important here...not much passed between the time she fell asleep and then awoke and called me. On top of that we need to consider the loud sawing noise. Dogs have sensitive ears." I summoned up the courage to ask a pivotal question. "Mrs. Hooper, don't take this the wrong way, but do you snore?" She blushed. "I thought so. Let's have a look in your closet." As I suspected, there was Snuggles under a pile of dirty laundry—his paws tightly covering his ears.

The reunion was swift and I was back in bed within the hour, $100 bill firmly clenched in my hand. Sweet dreams followed.

Greetings from the windy city of Chicago, situated on beautiful Lake Michigan! Sorry for the delay in writing, but my computer is on the blink since the movers dropped it. My e-mail isn't functioning properly; as a result, I must resort to snail mail. There are many other bummers I have to deal with since leaving you in Malibu—the most difficult is not waking up in the morning to a pristine view of the Pacific Ocean. The lake is magnificent, but there aren't any handsome surfers, tanned lifeguards, or compelling reasons to put on my new bikini—just sailboats and gray skies.

I like my new school, but the kids don't dress as stylishly as they do at Malibu Elementary. Maybe because uniforms are required! Every student wears the same ugly green plaid vest and either pants or a skirt. I'd rather wear a skirt, but it's just been too darn cold to show off my tan legs.

We also start school earlier here, at 7:55 a.m., so I'm usually either sleepy or late to school. I liked it better in California with school starting at 8:25 a.m. Instead of a snack recess, we go straight through the morning and are allowed more time for lunch recess. If you live near school, you're even allowed to go home for lunch!

Kids like to play tetherball at my new school. I'm a spaz at tetherball. Looks like this handball champion has a lot of practicing to do! After school, most of the kids take the bus home instead of walking like we used to. I guess that's because it rains and snows a lot in Chicago, unlike sunny Malibu! I miss attending our scouting meetings and tennis practice. My mom said she is going to enroll me in singing lessons. Doesn't that sound neat? Britney Spears, watch out!

Well, I hope you are doing well back in Malibu. I miss you so much. When do you think you can come for a visit? June? Well, until then, let's not forget to wear the friendship bracelets we made for each other. I wear mine every day!

Miss you,
Shelby

Jacob's tennis match was to begin in an hour. He had massive butterflies in his stomach. He decided to take a walk in the woods near his house. Suddenly, he saw a black and white face peeking out from behind a bush. Realizing that it was a skunk, Jacob ran, but the skunk followed in hot pursuit. Jacob stepped on the gas, faked to the left, and sprinted the other way. But it was too late—the skunk beat Jacob home.

"Go away you pesky skunk!" whispered Jacob to his new shadow, not wanting to warrant a spraying. "I have to get ready for my match, and I don't need a stinky mascot."

"Oh, if it's not Jacob, running off at the mouth as usual. Who are you talking too?" It was Drake Malfog, Jacob's opponent and least favorite person. Jacob wanted to scream something rude at Drake, but he didn't want to startle the skunk. "Cat got your tongue, Jacob? Well, see you on the tennis court, when I whip you into shape." When Jacob looked back the skunk was out of sight. Jacob was relieved and hurried into the house, grabbed his gear, and headed to the tennis courts.

City stadium was bursting at the seams. Drake was already on the tennis court. Jacob won the toss and picked up a ball to serve. Suddenly he began to sneeze and his eyes burned. Someone had sprinkled the balls with hot pepper. "Need a tissue?" yelled Drake from across the court. Jacob was about to protest when he saw a now familiar sight—that little skunk directly behind Drake. Jacob decided to let nature run its course and served the ball.

A smell like no other immediately filled the air surrounding Drake Malfog. "A skunk!" shouted Drake. "I've been sprayed!" he moaned, chasing himself in circles. Before anyone could respond, Drake was running toward the showers, and Jacob was shoos the little skunk to safety on the other side of the fence.

Drake did return to the court an hour later and finished the match. He lost to Jacob 6-0, 6-0. The newspaper's headlines the next morning read: Jacob Wins a Real Stinker.

PLANT LIFE DISCOVERED BEYOND EARTH

By Leonard Estrada

Astronauts recently discovered a type of plant growing on the planet Venus. The strangely colored plant was brought back to Earth on Atlantis III, when it returned home from its month-long mission last Friday.

The huge plant resembles a Sago palm; it is hunter green in hue with deep shades of purple and yellow running down the center of each leaf. When broken, the leaves emit a sweet, viscous liquid, that smells very much like coconut milk.

Scientists are using great caution during the plant's examination process. Protective suits, gloves, and goggles must be worn at all times. It is believed that the plant's juice can cause hallucinations if it is ingested or absorbed through the skin. Only scientists with Level 5 security clearance are permitted to view the plant. It is being housed at an undisclosed military facility until further tests can be completed.

Read the topic sentence that appears in bold print. Do not read what follows, just yet. Write a few prediction sentences about the topic sentences on the lines below. When you are done, go back and read the topic explanations.

There are four rules of life.

Speak and act the truth: If you are unable to speak or act the truth, then do not speak or act at all. Lies and harmful actions corrode friendships, harmony, and unity. Always think how your words and deeds will affect others and then decide if the effect will be favorable or unfavorable. Unfavorable is never the correct choice.

Do not judge others: No one is perfect and every story has two sides. If we judge others harshly before we know all of the facts, we sentence that person to emotional prison. The same is true for believing a person to be perfect. In doing so we put him or her on an undeserved pedestal.

Do not judge yourself by what others say: People can make you believe that you are wicked or wonderful. They can hurt your feelings or give you a sense of false security. If you are heavily influenced by others' opinions, you can never be yourself.

Always do your best: Know what you are capable of and do no more and no less. Your capabilities are ever changing, depending on your health, age, and the situation. To do less than your best will cause you to fall short of your potential and leave some of your talents unused.

Anytime you are outdoors, you are at risk for sunburn and possibly skin cancer. Sunburns are your body's way of telling you that it has been exposed to too much direct sunlight. One of the first signs of mild sunburn is the reddening of the skin. The affected area will feel warm and look blotchy-pink. To prevent sunburn, always shield yourself from the sun's powerful rays by wearing protective clothing, sunglasses, hats, and sunscreen with a rating of at least SPF 15.

Joe was bored and looking for a solution to the day's tedium. He wandered around the house pondering a way to entertain himself. He spotted his brother's kite—just the distraction he was looking for! However, Joe knew Bob would be mad at him if he borrowed the kite without permission. Joe glanced out the hall window. The trees were blowing in an easterly direction and the sky was bright with white, fluffy clouds and sunshine. Joe knew the kite would soar on a perfectly windy day like this.

Joe went into his brother's room, grabbed the kite, and threw caution to the wind—literally! Joe headed for the park. As Joe unwound the kite's long string, he heard a familiar voice. "Hey there, little brother," growled Bob. "What do you think you're doing?"

"They should be given set working hours and liberal vacations. Animals should even be compensated for overtime, and female animals deserve maternity leave!" Again, the crowd cheered.

It was Eloise's mission in life to defend the rights of animals. She had been doing so ever since her parents took her on a carriage ride through Central Park. It was July 1, 1992, Eloise's tenth birthday. The weather was extremely hot and the horse was having difficulty breathing. Instead of returning the languid animal to the stables, the carriage driver angrily whipped the pathetic beast. Eloise was appalled! She jumped out of her seat and took matters into her own hands.

More people die in fires than in hurricanes, earthquakes, floods, and all other natural disasters combined! Fires are very dangerous. Every year children start more than 100,000 fires. These fires account for thousands of deaths and millions of dollars in property damage. Dangerous fires can be prevented in many ways; the first is to take fire seriously and the second is to prepare in the event of a fire.

1. What is the main idea? _____
  - a. Fires are dangerous.
  - b. Children are dangerous.
  - c. Fires are worse than earthquakes.

No music collection is complete without a Beatles CD, because the Beatles are the most influential band of the 20th century. Back in the '60s the Beatles routinely topped the charts with hits like "Paperback Writer" and "Yellow Submarine." They sold millions of records, appeared in movies and on television, and have had dozens of books written about them. Even today, many Beatles songs receive regular radio airplay—they are considered classic hits.

2. What is the main idea? _____
  - a. CDs are better than records.
  - b. No music collection is complete without a Beatles CD.
  - c. The Beatles were popular only in the '60s.

If it could be mass-produced, spider silk would be a hot commodity. Spider silk is an amazing fiber. Spider silk is stronger than steel and has more stretch than rubber. So why don't we see spider silk clothing that never wears out and thin spider silk ropes that can hold back a Mack truck? The problem is that spiders do not cohabitate well with members of their species. They do not have the friendly manners of silkworms! Spiders fight when in groups and eat one another. Therefore, it is impossible for spiders to make enough silk on their own to manufacture human products.

3. What is the main idea? _____
  - a. Spider silk clothing will replace wool.
  - b. Spiders are natural-born fighters.

Jennifer was reading a novel. Ronnie began telling another of his made-up stories out loud. "Oh, chill, Ronnie," smiled Jennifer, finally putting down her novel. "I do listen to you, sometimes. But we've been cooped up in this musty, drafty cabin for two days, and I'm getting a little exhausted from your non-ending stories. They aren't only ridiculous, but they are boring." She saw by Ronnie's expression that his feelings were deeply hurt. Jennifer tried to ease the sting of her words. "I'm sorry. It's just that I thought we were going to have a fun ski vacation. Who knew an avalanche was going to close the slopes and block all the exit roads for this long? I'm as bored as you are. I just happen to be better at entertaining myself than you are."

Ronnie was still looking dejected. "How am I ever going to be a famous author if I can't even get my sister to listen to my stories?"

"I have an idea," Jennifer offered. "Why don't you write me a story, Ronnie? That way you can gather your thoughts before you express them, and while you are writing I can have the quiet I'm craving." Ronnie agreed.

Use the clues to find out which of the fifty states is being described. You may also check an atlas for extra help.

- 1. The Golden State is really beautiful. I am looking out of my hotel window at the largest suspension bridge in the world. Tomorrow I will travel south to stargaze at all the famous people. Then I will go south of the border to visit a Spanish-speaking country.
- 2. Today I went for a swim in a great salt lake. The Sundance Film Festival is being held nearby. In the winter this state has many great places to ski and snowboard, such as Park City and Deer Valley.
- 3. Aloha! As I arrived in this island paradise, I was presented with a beautiful flower lei. These islands are warm and humid, and have many beautiful beaches with large waves perfect for surfing. This state is the most recent addition to the United States of America.
- 4. Howdy, partner! I am visiting the Lone Star State. Everything is bigger here. I've seen many cowboys and large herds of cattle, as well as lots of oil wells. The men all wear big hats and everyone loves to squaredance and listen to country music.
- 5. Here I am in America's last great wilderness. This is a good state to visit in the summer because the days last forever, and there's a lot to see and do. Tomorrow we are going to pan for gold and then go salmon fishing in the river. During the winter everyone stays indoors a lot because it is very cold and the days are extremely short.
- 6. I am in a taxi in the Big Apple on my way to see some Broadway shows. Most people use the subway to travel in this city. This city was originally called New Amsterdam, but now it has the same name as the state where it's located.
- 7. Today I am relaxing on a beautiful white sand beach, while enjoying a large glass of fresh orange juice, both of which this state is famous for. Tomorrow I will explore the Everglades, and then go to visit the oldest city in America.
- 8. Greetings from a New England state that shares borders with Massachusetts, Maine, and Vermont. The leaves, wearing their fall colors of red and gold, are beautiful here. While visiting the state capital, Concord, I learned that the state motto is Live Free or Die.
- 9. Wow! Mt. Rushmore is really impressive. Some of the Indian tribes that live here include the Lakota, Dakota, and Nakota, which make up the Sioux Indian Nation.
- 10. Here I am on a riverboat, heading toward the Gulf of Mexico. This mighty river has the same name as the state it borders. The fishing is great. Wish you were here.

Human bones are composed of two important minerals: calcium and phosphorus. With the help of these minerals, your body will develop and maintain a strong skeletal structure. It is important to consume foods that are rich in these minerals. Dairy products, such as milk, cheese, yogurt, and ice cream are excellent sources.

Osteoporosis is a degenerative bone disease, resulting in a loss of bone tissue, that usually affects mature women. But the disease can be prevented. Our bodies require a nutritious diet and regular exercise. Young women should make a conscious effort to take a calcium supplement and partake in a regular exercise program.

Doctors advise women to exercise at least three times a week. Running, jogging, jumping rope, aerobics, dancing, cycling, skating, and swimming are all great aerobic activities. It is also important to include bone-strengthening anaerobic activities in your exercise routine. This combination of exercises will help build up your strength, muscle power, and flexibility. Proper diet and exercise can lessen your chances of developing osteoporosis.

Dear Gabby,
There's this boy at my school who was always very nice to me. He always shared snacks with me in the cafeteria and even invited me to watch him play baseball once! Last week we were talking and our math teacher told him to stop flirting with me out loud in front of the whole class. Everyone laughed. Now he doesn't talk to me anymore. He says that he doesn't even like me and that he was just trying to be nice. I am very upset. Did he really like me or was he just trying to be nice?

Dear Gabby,
I really liked a girl at my school. I decided to ask her out, and now she has changed! She follows me everywhere and gets jealous when I talk to my friends. Every night she calls me about ten times and even leaves messages for me when I am trying to do my homework. My parents are getting mad and I don't know what to do. I told her to stop being so pesky but she said she just likes me a lot.

Kenny had been saving his allowance and gift money for the past seven months. He even took on a part-time job after school—walking Mrs. Dripper’s hyperactive dog Droplet. Kenny’s goal was to save enough money to buy a Phase VII Surf Dude Windsurfer, just like the one Rex Riggs rode in the Hawaiian championship. Kenny knew the windsurfer would be expensive, and he was glad his dad promised to match every dollar Kenny saved and earned.

The windsurfer was scheduled for release on June 30th. On the night of the 29th, Kenny counted his cash. He had $347; with his dad’s matching donation, Kenny had a total of $694.

Kenny woke up the next morning very excited. His dad was already awake and waiting to drive Kenny to the surf shop. There was a crowd of kids huddled around the shop entrance. Kenny could see the Phase VII Surf Dude prominently displayed in the window. His heart raced as he strained to see the price, which was being blocked by a kid with a huge head. Then he caught a glimpse. “Only $899” read the sign. Kenny could feel tears welling up in his eyes and a lump forming in his throat.

Old Joe Johnson lives next door to me. Joe is ancient—I'd guess about 300 years old. When Joe was born, the Revolutionary War was just beginning, and a kid's idea of fun was chasing squirrels and eating tree bark. Joe reads 50 books a day, and I'm not talking little books, either. I mean huge tomes, even longer than the telephone directory! Joe gets most of his books from the library and garage sales.

Last weekend I went to a garage sale with Joe. These people had so much stuff in their garage that a worm couldn't even fit in to look around. And the place smelled like dusty socks had been kept there for 100 years. I thought my nose hairs were going to disintegrate. Joe didn't seem to notice the smell or the mess. All he could see were the stacks of books—$5 a bagful. They had a bunch of crinkled old grocery bags and people were filling them full of musty books. Joe must have gotten 1,000 books in his bag! Then he asked me to carry it. The darn thing was heavier than an elephant in armor. Joe was all worried that I'd dump the bag, but I didn't. I carried it over the mountains and through the woods back to Joe's house. Joe was very tired when we got there. He sat down on his porch and was deep into a nap before I could say, "How about some lemonade?" I figured, what the heck, and pulled up a chair. Before I knew it, I was lost in my own world of shuteye! Garage sales sure are tiring.

Rudd Flynn is thirteen years old. Rudd lives in the tiny village of Trundle. Rudd is quite unlike other children his age, because Rudd is a junior-apprentice sorcerer, first class. A junior-apprentice sorcerer, first class has been through two years of intense magical training and has the knowledge and the authorization to cast spells, tame monsters, and alter the weather. Sorcerers seem to stumble upon adventures the way mortals stumble upon uneven stones and bricks in the road. This was the case recently when Rudd found himself face-to-face with a gerbilgoff.

Gerbilgoffs, for those of you who are not familiar, are fanciful creatures that resemble gerbils except for the fact that they grow to be over 7' tall and are fierce aggressors if their nests are disturbed. Gerbilgoffs fear lightning. So when Rudd accidentally disturbed a nest of grunts (the term used to describe baby gerbilgoffs) and their mother lunged in ominous retaliation, Rudd was left with no other option but to produce a bolt of lightning from the tip of his wand. It scared the gerbilgoff, but it also triggered the biggest electrical storm Trundle has seen in decades.

Electrical storms can be quite dangerous. Rudd had to ensure the safety of the townspeople, so he materialized warning signs and magically hung them in every shop window. They read: During an electrical storm, please—

- Get inside a building, if possible.
- Keep away from windows and open doors.
- Don't use electrical appliances or the telephone. Lightning can follow the wires into your home.
- Stay out of the shower or bathtub. Lightning can travel through the pipes too.
- Avoid trees, poles, and other tall objects.
- Also avoid large metal objects. These things are targets for lightning.
- Go to low ground and crouch down low if you're caught outdoors.
- If you're in the water, get out as quickly as possible.

That way everyone in Trundle was safe from the storm.

Marshall examined the scene of the theft. He looked around the place where the chocolate bunny had disappeared. Sticky footprints led toward the stairs. They weren't human prints. Marshall only likes sour candy balls. He never eats chocolate because it gives him a rash.

"I think it was a ghost!" declared Marshall's sister Missy, the owner of the missing chocolate. "I didn't hear them come in or out, and I was here the entire time. I was listening but I didn't hear a thing."

Marshall wrote that fact down in his notebook. He wrote in pen. He likes to write in pen better than in pencil. It makes him feel more grown up.

Snuggles and Muggles decided to investigate the yard. The garden was full of exotic vegetables, many they'd never before tasted. From then on, Snuggles and Muggles were content to stay at home in their safe hutch. They were so busy tasting everything, they didn't notice there was a large, yellow cat crouched behind a tomato bush. "Hop!" yelled Muggles, and the two bunnies didn't stop hopping until they were safely back in their hutch. Then they hopped over to the garden on the other side of the Smith's fence. Once upon a time, there were two rabbits. Snuggles hopped out first and landed in a pile of leaves, followed by Muggles. First, they encountered many delicious flowers. One morning Snuggles noticed that the hutch door was unlocked. Suddenly the creature pounced (leaped toward them). The hutch provided warmth and shelter for Snuggles and Muggles, and their owners fed them every day, but something was lacking.

Here's a hint. Topic sentences don't always appear first in a paragraph. Also, always be on the lookout for supporting sentences in each paragraph.

Directions: Read the passage. Then write the topic sentences in each paragraph on the lines below.

A. Nocturnal animals are very different from most animals you commonly see during your waking hours. Unlike dogs and horses, nocturnal animals do most of their playing, hunting, caring for their young, and exploring in the dark of night. When you are asleep, nocturnal animals are active. In the morning, when you awaken, these animals are going off to burrows and nests to sleep.

B. Nocturnal animals have special adaptations to help them thrive in the dark. Owls have large eyes that can see well on a moonless night. Foxes have a great sense of smell that enables them to locate prey in very little light. Mice, gerbils, and other rodents have long whiskers to guide them safely through the woods at night. Hyenas have large ears that they use to hear sounds and locate prey in the dark, and bats use a form of radar to maneuver through the darkness.

C. Diurnal animals are the opposite of nocturnal animals. Diurnal animals are active during the day and need sunshine to thrive and survive. Diurnal animals tend to have smaller eyes and ears than nocturnal animals because light guides their way. It's possible that a nocturnal and diurnal animal living in the same forest might never encounter one another. You could say one works the night shift while the other works during the day.

The common green iguana, scientifically known as Iguana iguana, is a reptile pet imported from South or Central America or raised in captivity. Iguanas are the most popular lizard for people to have as pets. Unfortunately, they tend to be a pet bought on impulse. Consequently, owners often do not understand the needs of their pet. One factor people forget about iguanas is that they grow continuously. In the wild, iguanas live 10 to 15 years and can grow as large as 7 feet. Reptiles in captivity can live up to 20 years if cared for properly.

Each reptile has requirements for moisture, temperature, hibernation, and diet. Owning any reptile is going to require work. You can't just buy it, throw it in a cage, and think it's fine. Do research about your potential pet and find out the requirements. You should get a cage that is at least two times the length, from nose to tail, of the reptile. Plus you will want to have room for it to move up and down so you'll need to provide branches for it to climb on. Iguanas are herbivores. Up to 90 percent of an iguana's diet should consist of dark, leafy green vegetables.

Iguanas are diurnal. In their native environment, iguanas rest at night and begin the hunt for tender shoots, flowers, and soft fruits after basking in the sun for a few hours in the morning. After eating, they bask in the sun again to stay warm enough to digest food. Be sure to provide your iguana with a source of ultraviolet light and the appropriate amount of heat. Keep a thermometer available to monitor the air temperature.

Iguanas are prey for other animals. So a great part of their day is spent keeping a lookout for predators. Initially, you will be the predator it is protecting itself from. Socializing your iguana is a time-consuming process, but necessary. Many people end up getting rid of their iguana when it expresses its natural behavior of aggressiveness toward the predator—humans. However, with time and socialization with you, your iguana will relax and be a happy, safe pet.

A. Kites have been around for more than two thousand years and have had many uses besides recreation. Kites are believed to have been invented in China or Korea about 200 B.C. One of the earliest kite stories is about a famous Chinese general, Han Hsin. Around 200 B.C. Hsin was the commander of a rebel army on a mission to overthrow an evil emperor. Han ordered his men to build a kite and to fly it over the Emperor's palace. When the kite was over the palace, the string was marked. Later Han measured the length and determined how long a tunnel should be dug to bring the rebel army inside the walls of the palace. His plan was successful and the malevolent Emperor was eventually overthrown.

B. Millions of different kinds of plants and animals live on earth. Rainforests are home to more than half of those species. Rainforests are an important ecosystem. Millions of forest-dwelling people around the world live in or depend on rainforests. They have learned how to live in ways that don't harm the forests. Many of the world's important food crops, medicines, and animals come from rainforest species. The Earth's weather is affected by rainforests. When trees are cut down and burnt or left to decompose, they release carbon dioxide into the air, which causes global warming.

C. Boxing Day is a holiday celebrated in Britain, Australia, New Zealand, and Canada. It falls on December 26. The public observance of Boxing Day takes place on the following Monday if December 26 falls on a Saturday or Sunday. The traditional celebration of Boxing Day included giving money and other gifts to charitable institutions, needy individuals, and people in service jobs. The holiday may date from the Middle Ages (A.D. 400s–1500s), but the exact origin is unknown. It may have begun with the lords and ladies of England, who presented Christmas gifts in boxes to their servants on December 26.

St. Augustine, Florida is the oldest permanent European settlement on the North American continent. It was founded forty-two years before the English colony at Jamestown, Virginia, and fifty-five years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock in Massachusetts.

St. Augustine is the oldest city in America. Spanish explorer and treasure hunter Don Juan Ponce de Leon first sighted the mainland of North America on Easter, March 27, 1513. He claimed the land for Spain and named it La Florida, meaning "Land of Flowers." Between 1513 and 1563 the government of Spain launched six expeditions to settle Florida, but all failed. The French succeeded in establishing a fort and colony on the St. Johns River in 1564 and, in doing so, threatened Spain's treasure fleets that sailed along Florida's shoreline returning to Spain. As a result of this infiltration into Florida, King Phillip II named Don Pedro Menendez de Aviles, Spain's most experienced admiral, as governor of Florida, instructing him to explore and to colonize the rich territory. Menendez was also instructed to drive out any pirates or settlers from other countries.

Menendez skillfully fulfilled his king's wishes. When Menendez arrived off the coast of Florida, it was August 28, 1565, the Feast Day of St. Augustine. Eleven days later, he and his 600 soldiers and settlers came ashore at the site of the Timucuan Indian village of Seloy with Spanish flags flying and trumpets sounding. He quickly fortified the tiny village and named it St. Augustine. Using brilliant military maneuvers, Menendez destroyed the French garrison on the St. Johns River and, with the help of a tropical hurricane, also defeated the French fleet. With the coast of Florida firmly in Spanish hands, he set to work building the town, establishing missions, converting the Indians to his church, and exploring the lush land.

At the end of the Civil War, the defeated South was a ruined land. The physical destruction caused by Union troops was enormous, and the old social and economic order founded on slavery had collapsed completely, with nothing to replace it. Carpetbaggers saw this as an opportunity to prosper. The word carpetbagger was used in the South after the Civil War to describe Northerners who went to the South during reconstruction to seek their fortune. Although regarded as temporary residents of the South because of the carpetbags in which they carried their possessions (hence the name carpetbaggers), most of these opportunists intended to settle in the South and take advantage of business opportunities there. Former slaves were more trusting of Northerners than former slave owners and tended to vote for the outsiders. With the support of the black vote, the carpetbaggers played an important role in the Republican state governments. The corrupt activities of some carpetbaggers made the term carpetbagger one and the same with any stranger who interferes in a town's political affairs for personal benefit.

Baseball vs. Golf

Baseball is a team sport. The object of the game is to hit the ball so the other team can't catch it and run around the bases until you reach home. There are nine innings in a baseball game, unless there is a tie, and then you may go into extra innings. There is a lot of running in baseball. Baseball equipment includes: bats, balls, gloves, and cleats. Baseball is played on grass and Astroturf.

Golf is an individual sport. The object of the game is to hit the little ball with the club as few times as possible to get it into the hole. There is a lot of walking in golf. Golfers need clubs, balls, and cleats. Golf is played on grass courses, unless you're playing miniature golf. That's played on Astroturf or green cement.

New York City

New York City was settled by the Dutch in the 1600s and is the largest city in the United States. It is the center of world finance, communications, and global business. New York City is unique because of its extremely diverse population, its hundreds of tall buildings, its huge central business district, its extensive public transportation system, and its more than 400 separate neighborhoods. The city's concert houses, museums, galleries, and theaters are world-renown. Manhattan Island sits in the Atlantic Ocean and has long been an important shipping port. The present population of New York City is about 7,500,000.

London

London is the capital of the United Kingdom. London is situated in southeastern England along the Thames River. With a population of just under 7 million, London is by far the largest city in Europe. This fact has been true since the 17th century. In the 19th century it was the largest and most influential city in the world, the center of culture and business. Although it is no longer #1 in the world, London is still one of the world's major financial and cultural capitals.

Directions:Compare and contrast the two versions of this event.Miss Mabel Marble, Head Mistress at Meadow School for Little Ladies:

It was nearly 11:20 on the night of October 5th. I had just rolled my hair in curlers and was about to fasten my night bonnet when I heard a noise that sounded very much like a shower of rain; however, the forecast had not predicted rain and I smelled no moisture in the air. Still the trickling sound continued. I parted the curtains to see a frightening occurrence—sand flying out of the playground sandbox, and landing on the roof of the school. I also saw Loretta Fay Flowers near the sandbox pointing up to the sky, and directing the sand, as if she had magical powers in her fingertips. I have always known there was something strange about that child. Something a good scolding has been unable to cure. She was purposely trying to cover the school building in sand.

Loretta Fay Flowers, Eleven-Year-Old Student at Meadow School for Little Ladies:

On October 5th at 11:20, I was awakened by a strange sound—the sound of sand flying from the sandbox in the school playground onto the roof of the school building. I ran outside to get a better look. I saw Miss Mabel Marble looking out the window of her bedroom. She had a strange twisted antenna in her hair, as if she were from another planet. She was pointing at the sand, making it fly through the sky onto the school building. There aren't many children who aren't terrified of Miss Mabel Marble, and now I know why. She's a space creature pretending to be a headmistress so she can capture poor little girls and send them to another planet in outer space.

Andre wasn't the most popular kid at school. In fact, lots of kids made fun of him. Andre was as tall as a first-grader and he was nearly 12! Everyone in Andre's family was short, but that didn't stop them from being happy and successful. After school one Friday, the kids teased Andre so much he decided to walk home alone the long way. As Andre walked past an old building, he heard a cry for help. There was a tiny crawlspace with a woman standing in front of it crying. Her cat had crawled under the building, and she couldn't reach him. The building was scheduled to be demolished. Without saying a word, Andre wiggled through the opening and rescued the cat. The woman was so thankful she gave Andre $100 and called the local newspapers to tell the story. Andre was a hero at school on Monday morning!

Ask yourself questions about the characters as you read. It will help you get to know them.

Directions: Read the paragraphs and then answer the character questions below.

Tyson, Bull, and Ham have been business associates since kindergarten. They call themselves The Money Magnets. What an amazingly successful time they have had earning cash! From selling candy bars, to newspapers, to mowing lawns and raking leaves, the three are a motivated, triumphant team of savvy entrepreneurs. And they are only in the sixth grade!

The trio lives in a small, isolated town where kids often complain of monotonous summers. From that, an idea was born. This summer The Money Magnets are hosting a fair on the outskirts of town. Ham's father donated his vacant lot to the endeavor. There will be rides, entertainment, food, and fun for all ages. Each of the boys has his own particular talent to contribute. Tyson is great with numbers and math, so he is handling all of the event's finances. Bull is the most physically fit and enjoys the construction and design aspect of creating the fair. Finally, Ham is the group's entertainer! He hires the help, performs in the shows, and keeps everyone smiling!

1. If you were having trouble with geometry, whom might you ask for assistance?

According to the directions, if I want to make a phone call, all I need do is clap out the numbers I desire dialed. That isn't as simple as it may sound, especially when the number I most frequently dial is that of my Turf Accountant at: 989-9998. It takes me exactly 17 minutes to make that many claps, more if I forget my place. I was wondering if you have a speed-dial attachment I can purchase. My hands are aching.

Thank you,
Dick T. Fine

Dear Sir or Madam:
I recently purchased your Wizzo-Matic Kitchen Wisk and I am thoroughly satisfied! I have never been able to make egg-whites peak so high before. My lemon chiffon pies are a sensation, thanks to your fabulous product.

Sincerely,
Abe Buffet

My name is Hillary Gordon, and my parents bought me tickets to the circus for my 12th birthday. "I'm going to the circus, going to the circus!" My brother Bill threatened to gag me with his smelly socks if I said the word "circus" one more time.

On Saturday, my family eagerly piled into the car and headed downtown to the Convention Center to the circus. Bill was fussing that he had to sit next to Auntie Lupe and her old dog Snickers. Snickers suffers from incontinence—Auntie Lupe always carries lots of towels. Bill is such a complainer.

As we entered the circus, I could smell the pungent aroma of popcorn and candy. When we arrived at our seats, I asked my father to buy some cotton candy. Before Dad could pass it down the aisle to me, Bill grabbed a huge handful of my pink cotton candy and shoved it into his mouth. He then took my paper cone and kept poking poor Snickers in the back of the head. Auntie Lupe didn't bring enough towels to clean up the consequences of Bill's pestering. The people behind us changed seats.

My favorite act was the Amazing Armando Trapeze Family. They could swing and flip and catch each other's toes in mid-air. Bill said he could swallow fire while swinging from the livingroom drapes and promised to prove it when we got home. I bet Bill $2 he couldn't get three feet off the ground without singeing his eyebrows or being walloped with Mother's broom. He took my bet.

Let's say that the evening's events topped the big top—six fire trucks responded to a neighbor's call of a flying torch in our living room. When it was over, Bill was hairless and in loads of trouble.

Detective Declan was called to investigate a robbery at Rings & Things. When he arrived at the store, people were running around frantically and a policeman was taping off the area with bright yellow ribbon that read: CRIME SCENE. Authorities didn't want anyone near the site until Detective Declan had done his investigation. "We've been waiting for you," grumbled the sheriff.

Detective Declan walked into the store; it was dark. He tried to turn on the lights, but they didn't work. He took a couple of steps; he heard the sound of glass breaking beneath his feet. He'd found the broken light bulb. He reached into his pocket, took out his flashlight, and shined it on the floor. In the spotlight, Detective Declan could see watches, ladies rings, bracelets, and necklaces that had been left behind in haste. Some had spots of pink on them. He also saw a pink streak across the display case glass. It faintly smelled of paint.

With that, Detective Declan walked outside into the bright sunlight. The Rings & Things cashier, Ms. Pearl, was sitting on the sidewalk; she had not yet been questioned about the robbery. Detective Declan looked down at her well-manicured hands. Two pink nails were visibly smudged. "Ms. Pearl," smiled Declan. "Perhaps it would have been prudent for you to wait until your manicure had fully dried." Case closed!

- a. ____ He went outside to interview, Ms. Pearl, the cashier.

Directions: Read the story below. Then number the events in the proper order.

My mom taught me how to make her famous chocolate chip cookie ice cream pie. It's my favorite! The notion of making a pie from scratch sounds simple, but there are many steps involved, if you want your end product to be perfectly delicious.

The first thing my mom does is to write a list of pie ingredients. Then she checks the refrigerator, freezer, and pantry to see if she has the necessary items. If not, she makes a grocery list, and takes a quick trip to the supermarket.

Chocolate chip cookie ice cream pie requires:

- |  |                                   |
|--|-----------------------------------|
| 1 16 oz. package of chocolate chip cookies (or homemade) | 1/2 cup softened butter           |
| 1 cup hot fudge topping                                  | 2 quarts chocolate chip ice cream |
| 1 cup whipped cream                                      | 12 cherries                       |

Once you have all the ingredients, you are ready to begin. First, Mom crushes  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the cookies into crumbs. Then, she adds the crumbs to the softened butter and presses them into the bottom of a deep pie plate. Next, Mom spreads most of the fudge topping over the crust. She saves some for the top of the pie. When that part is complete, it's time to put the pie into the freezer for 15 minutes.

While the crust is freezing, Mom puts one quart of ice cream in the microwave for 45 seconds. This helps to soften the ice cream. After that, she takes the crust out of the freezer and spreads the ice cream over the fudge and cookie crust.

Finally, Mom scoops the rest of the ice cream into balls and arranges them on top of the pie. Once again she freezes the pie, this time overnight. The rest of the fudge topping, whipped cream, cookie crumbs, and cherries go on top before serving! Delicious!

- _____ My mom goes to the supermarket and buys what she will need.
- _____ Then she puts the fudge on the crust.
- _____ She puts the pie in the freezer for 15 minutes.
- _____ Finally, she tops the pie with whipped cream, cookie crumbs, and cherries!
- _____ Next she puts the ice cream on top of the fudge.
- _____ She's ready to begin.
- _____ My mom makes a list of the ingredients she will need.
- _____ First, she crushes the cookies to make the crust.
- _____ After that, my mom puts the pie in the freezer overnight.

Mom joined Dad on a business trip last weekend. Grandma Tucker came to stay with us while they were away. My brother and I were excited because we don't often get to spend time alone with Grandma Tucker. Besides being a fun, beautiful, and thoughtful woman, Grandma Tucker has a remarkably creative imagination. She can make really amazing toys out of almost nothing. My brother Will and I brag about her to all of our friends.

As soon as my parents departed, Grandma's talents shifted into gear. She collected scraps of fabric from Mom's sewing basket and made new dresses for my dolls. Then she wound string around strips of plastic bags and made parachutes for Will's army men. By the time my parents returned, Will and I had a new and improved collection of toy accessories. Nothing happened, but it made me realize that sharks are very dangerous menaces!

By Mandy

1. How does Mandy feel about sharks? Why? _____

2. List three adjectives that describe Mandy's viewpoint. _____

B. Sharks: Sharks are beautiful creatures that have survived and thrived in the sea for millions of years. Movies and television have unfairly portrayed these humble creatures as vicious killers, when in actuality they are scavengers doing what comes natural for their survival. I believe that anyone who kills a shark should be fined $1,000 and sent to a class on sharks so they can learn what is true and what is folklore about these amazing fish!

By Fletcher

From 1920 until about 1930 an extraordinary outburst of creative activity among African-Americans occurred in all fields of art, music, and literature. Beginning in New York City's Greenwich Village and Harlem sections of town, this African-American cultural movement became known as the Harlem Renaissance. More than a literary movement and more than a social revolt against racism, the Harlem Renaissance was the rebirth of African-Americans; it redefined African-American expression. African-Americans were encouraged to celebrate their heritage and use their talents to express themselves creatively.

One of the factors contributing to the rise of the Harlem Renaissance was the great migration of African-Americans from the south to northern cities such as New York City, Chicago, and Washington, D.C., between the years 1919 and 1926. Education and social status were important to these budding artists and the fruits of their creations are still revered today.

The Ant and the Chrysalis

An ant nimbly running about in the sunshine in search of food came across a chrysalis that was very near its time of change. The chrysalis moved its tail and thus attracted the attention of the ant, who then saw for the first time that it was alive. "Poor, pitiable animal!" cried the ant disdainfully. "What a sad fate is yours! While I can run hither and thither, at my pleasure, and, if I wish, ascend the tallest tree, you lie imprisoned here in your shell, with power only to move a joint or two of your scaly tail." The chrysalis heard all this, but did not try to make any reply. A few days after, when the ant passed that way again, nothing but the shell remained. Wondering what had become of its contents, he felt himself suddenly shaded and fanned by the gorgeous wings of a beautiful butterfly. "Behold me," said the butterfly, "your much-pitied friend! Boast now of your powers to run and climb if you can get me to listen." So saying, the butterfly rose into the air, and, borne along and aloft on the summer breeze, was soon lost to the sight of the ant forever.

Directions: Read the information passage below. Then fill in the boxes.

Daniel Webster was the ninth born son of Ebenezer Webster, who was a farmer and tavern-keeper. Daniel was born in Salisbury, New Hampshire, on January 18, 1782. He was nicknamed "Black Dan" because of his jet-colored hair. When he was a child he was very ill and often bedridden. His family thought he wouldn't survive to adulthood. Daniel could do little except read. He soon fell in love with books. When Daniel was just fifteen he entered Dartmouth College. After graduating, he taught for a little while before working in a law office in Boston.

In 1807 Webster married and moved to Portsmouth. He became a lawyer in the fast-changing seaport. Though his law practice was an immediate success, Daniel did not socialize with the important people in his community. Daniel preferred evenings at home with his family.

Daniel Webster actively supported the pro-British Federalist Party. Webster was elected to the House of Representatives in 1817 and the Senate in 1827. This is where he earned his reputation as America's best orator. Webster eventually joined the Whig Party and served as Secretary of State under William Henry Harrison in 1841 and John Tyler until 1843. Webster also served as Secretary of State under Fillmore from 1850 until 1852. Although he strongly opposed slavery, Webster supported the Fugitive Slave Act in 1850. This angered the anti-slavery Whigs. Webster lost his presidential bid in 1852. Instead, Franklin Pierce got the nomination. Daniel Webster died on October 24, 1852.

When you write persuasively you are trying to get your reader to understand and agree with your point of view. Read the following tips for persuasive writing. Then choose a topic you care about and write your own persuasive piece. Some sample topics have been provided.

1. Choose a topic that matters to you.
2. Be sure to take a strong position.
3. Present convincing arguments in order to change the reader's mind.
4. Write in a clear and convincing manner.
5. Have at least three reasons and elaborate equally on all three.
6. Save the strongest reason as the last point: Save the best for last.
7. Do not take for granted that the reader understands your position. Clarify any statement you make.
8. Do not use needless repetitions.
9. Add details that support the position taken.
10. Give examples and be specific.
11. Organize ideas to flow logically.
12. Close appropriately by restating your point with a quick summary.

Possible Topics

- Kids should go to school only four days each week.
- School cafeterias need to improve lunches.
- Homework should be limited to one hour.
- Schools should go to a no-grades system.

B. It had been a grueling winter, but now spring was just around the corner. Carlotta decided that a garden would be just the thing to perk up everyone's spirits. Her grandfather had a green thumb, so she asked him to help her find the perfect spot in the yard. Mr. King found a sunny area near the rear of their property. Together, they enclosed it with a short mesh fence to keep out the rabbits and squirrels. Carlotta prepared the soil as her grandpa instructed, planted and watered her garden. By April, the plants had begun to sprout, and in May Carlotta's flowers began to bloom.

Directions: Read the paragraph below. Then answer the following questions. Use the back of this page as needed.

Eating balanced meals and exercising every day are important parts of a healthy lifestyle. Certain foods give your body vitamins it needs to grow, make energy, and stay fit. A good diet includes grains, vegetables, fruits, low-fat milk products, lean meats, fish, poultry, and dry beans. Try to avoid foods that are high in fat or sugar. Focus on the amount and types of foods you eat over a few days and try to eat a variety of different foods.

Exercise is also part of a healthy lifestyle, but safety is a very important concern when it comes to exercise, sports, and kids. About 250,000 children are hurt playing sports each year. Many injuries happen in unorganized games such as street football and backyard baseball, rather than in team sports like Little League and swimming competition. Sports on wheels, like skateboarding, bicycling, and roller-skating can also be dangerous. Many kids wipe out on skateboards and skates each year and end up in the hospital with concussions and broken bones. Injuries are worse when safety equipment like helmets, kneepads, and wrist pads are not worn. Be smart—play safe and eat right.

1. What two things do you need to stay healthy? _____
2. What types of foods make up a healthy diet? _____
3. What types of foods should you avoid? _____
4. How can you protect yourself from an injury when playing a sport? _____

One of the most feared dinosaurs in prehistoric times was the Tyrannosaurus Rex.

T-Rex, as it is commonly known, lived 65 million years ago. Other dinosaurs living at that same time were Triceratops and Ankylosaurus. Fossils of the Tyrannosaurus Rex have been found in Montana.

This dinosaur was up to 40 feet long and stood 15 to 20 feet tall (about 3–4 people tall). Tyrannosaurus Rex weighed 10,000 to 14,000 pounds and had a huge head. The T-Rex had tiny arms and only 2 sharp-clawed fingers on each hand. Tyrannosaurus Rex walked and ran very fast on two huge back legs and balanced on sharp-clawed 3-toed feet. Archeologists and scientists claim that Tyrannosaurus Rex could run about 30 miles per hour! The T-Rex also had a thin, stiff, pointed tail that was powerful enough to knock down a larger dinosaur in battle. The mouth of a T-Rex was even scarier—it held 60 serrated teeth, each 9 inches long. When a tooth fell out, another tooth would quickly grow back in its place. Tyrannosaurus Rex could see and smell exceptionally well. A T-Rex often lived alone but would sometimes travel with another T-Rex. Like most reptiles, Tyrannosaurus Rex laid eggs. It is not known if the T-Rex took care of its young.

Directions: Read each passage and then make a generalization about the topic discussed.

1. Throughout time, dogs have been humans' useful and faithful servants. Dogs protect and defend homes, farms, and businesses, and also provide companionship to their owners. Dogs can be trained to be the ears and eyes of people with disabilities; they can also entertain us in movies.

Generalization: _____

2. Most people know that humans cannot survive without water. However, did you know that 75% of Americans are chronically dehydrated? In many Americans, the thirst mechanism is so weak that it is often mistaken for hunger. Even mild dehydration will slow down your metabolism. One glass of water shut down midnight hunger pangs for almost 100% of dieters. Lack of water is the #1 trigger of daytime fatigue. A mere 2% drop in body water can trigger fuzzy short-term memory, trouble with basic math, and difficulty focusing on the computer screen or on a printed page. Go take a water break!

Generalization: _____

3. If you want to become proficient at something, practice makes perfect! Whether it is learning how to play a musical instrument or growing a vegetable garden, the tricks of the trade cannot be bought, only learned through patience and hard work. So when you set your sights on a skill, remember to keep your sights on the goal while you practice, practice, practice!

4. My brother and I have very different tastes in movies. When it's time to rent from the video store, we always argue. I prefer movies that have a riveting or dramatic story line. My brother, on the other hand, cares nothing for plots; all he wants is a good car chase or some monster gore. Luckily, our video store has 2-for-1 rentals on Thursdays. That way we both get what we want.

Katie's mom entered her world-famous chili in the State Fair Chili Cook Off. Mrs. Frank spent the entire morning in the kitchen cooking up her family's secret recipe. Katie could smell the aroma from the onions, peppers, ground beef, beans, and spices simmering together to make the tasty dish. She grew hungrier by the minute. After hours of preparation, Mrs. Frank called Katie into the kitchen. Katie came running into the kitchen; her mom held out a wooden spoon with her other hand underneath it. "Taste this," asked her mom. As always, the chili was delicious, and Katie told her mom she thought it would win first prize.

There were 100 contestants at the State Fair. Katie's mom put her chili pot in front of her number, 29. The judges walked down the rows of chili pots and took a spoonful from each. After each bite, they wrote some comments on a clipboard. Mrs. Frank didn't know what they were writing because judges had to keep everything secret until winners were announced. After two hours, they were ready. Katie's mom was nervous. The judges gave Katie's mom's chili pot the red ribbon—second place. Mrs. Frank was so happy. "You'll always be #1 to me," whispered Katie, as she gave her mom a big hug.

It was a pristine Sunday afternoon. My dad asked me if I would help him with yard work. Since I knew that he loved spending his free time outdoors in the sunshine, I decided to be an agreeable assistant. I love being with my dad so I enjoy our father-son chores.

First, we found all the equipment we would need to mow the lawn and trim the hedges. Next, we checked the gas level inside the lawnmower; it was already full. Finally, my dad put on his favorite baseball cap and a pair of sunglasses. I put on my old hat from summer camp; it was a very sunny day!

Once we got the lawnmower started, my dad showed me how to cut the grass in neat rows. He mowed most of the lawn as I watched. Then he took the trimmer and used it to shape the edges of the lawn. It surely made the lawn look neat. After that, my dad asked me if I was ready to take control of the lawnmower. I mowed the last two rows perfectly! I couldn't believe how easy it was to make my rows just like Dad's. When we were all finished, Dad said, "Congratulations on a job well done. I think I'll hand this chore over to you now that you've proved yourself worthy!"

I was so excited to go to school on Monday because my mom bought me new sneakers over the weekend. I picked out the navy blue pair of Skippers myself. All the commercials promised that Skippers would make me jump farther and run faster than my old Busters. I couldn't wait to run and play kickball with the kids at school.

On my way to school, I walked faster than usual. I arrived twenty minutes before the bell, so some friends and I decided to play chase on the field. I ran so fast that every one commented. I stopped to take a breath, put my hands down on my knees, and when I looked down at my new sneakers—I was in shock. My sneakers were no longer blue but a grimy brown! Even my white shoelaces were stained with mud. Fear struck me like lightning! I just knew I was going to be in big trouble with my mom for being careless. I ran to the boys' bathroom, wet a paper towel, and tried to remove the mud from my new sneakers. It didn't budge. The mud had permanently stained my new shoes!

After school, my mom's van was parked in front of school. I crawled into the van timidly, took a deep breath, and started to tell my mom about my Skippers. I couldn't look her straight in the eye; I felt so awful about my dirty shoes. I hoped she wouldn't be angry with me. To my relief, Mom just smiled, patted my head, and told me that everything was fine. Mom said she bought the sneakers for play. These were my recreation shoes, not my dress shoes. I was so relieved!

My mom and sister are scared of mice. Mice are so small that it's hard for me to fear their presence. Anyway, I'm a boy and boys aren't afraid of furry little creatures. In fact, we like them! My house is near an open field, which makes it convenient for mice to visit our house. When the uninvited guests arrive, it's my job to see that they promptly leave! I make live mousetraps. These traps are foolproof because they lull the mouse into thinking there is a free cheese meal being served. But when the mouse sits down to eat, SLAM, the trap door closes! No mouse can escape my ingenious trap.

I bait the trap with Swiss cheese, which I have learned is a mouse delicacy. I, too, like putting Swiss cheese on my turkey sandwiches. I use about half a slice for the mousetrap and the other half for myself. I think of these mice as my unwelcome friends. After all, we do have something in common—our love for cheese!

Once I bait the trap and catch a mouse, I usually return it to the field behind our house. I'm convinced the mice tell each other about the food and adventures they have at my house. Why else would so many keep coming back each fall for more cheese?

For our summer escape, my family and I went on a snorkeling adventure. We live in Hawaii, so you could say the adventure was in our own backyard! First our family drove to the dive store and rented gear: wetsuits, fins, snorkels, and goggles. After we tried them on to make sure they fit, we participated in a brief snorkeling training course. We learned how to breathe without using our noses. "Pretend your nose is stuffed and you have a cold," was the instructor's advice. Then the instructor showed us how to put on goggles properly and clean the lenses. When the lesson was finished, we jumped in our Jeep and headed to the beach.

The beach was packed with tourists who had traveled from all over the world to swim with tropical fish and other sea creatures. Luckily for us, no plane fare was necessary! My mom spread out our towels and blankets on the sand, and then we put on our gear just as the instructor demonstrated. My dad found a boat that would take us to a secluded lagoon and we all climbed aboard.

Strong waves made the boat ride unpleasant. Finally, we stopped at a lagoon; there were colorful, noisy birds flying overhead. My sister was so excited to see fish swimming so close to our boat. This was her first encounter. We all jumped into the water at once. My family had a great time snorkeling with the fish and exploring the pink coral reefs. After four hours, the boat returned us to the beach where our warm towels and blankets were waiting. We all napped like babies that afternoon!

On Tuesday, I had a huge end-of-the-year history test. I wanted to prepare for the test properly, so I reread all of my class notes and text assignments. My sister quizzed me on world explorers and dates by turning the questions into a trivia game. On Monday night, I reviewed all of my notes again and then went to bed early. My mom says it's important to be well rested before a big event.

Mr. Jackson, my history teacher, distributed the test as soon as the commencement bell rang. He walked down each aisle and placed the tests one by one, upside down on each student's desk. I could barely hold my pencil upright; my palms were visibly sweaty.

I wrote my name on the test and then began answering the multiple-choice questions first; they are my favorite. I was on question number 5 when I felt someone peering over my shoulder. I turned to see Ryan looking at my answer sheet. I quickly covered it up with my left hand and continued working. On question 10, I felt Ryan glaring at me. I knew he was livid that I wouldn't let him cheat. But I didn't care. I had studied very hard! How unfair it would be if I gave the answers away to Ryan! Instead of enduring the glare, I picked up my test paper and backpack and walked to an empty desk at the front of the room.

Follow the story closely. Then rewrite the different versions of the secrets that are told in the story.

Jamie and Corey are best friends. One day Jamie told his pal Corey a secret he'd overheard in the office. He softly whispered to Corey that the school was going to host a sundae party for all the fifth graders who had a perfect behavior record. Corey asked Jamie what a perfect behavior record meant. Jamie told him perfect meant a student hadn't been sent to the principal's office or gotten detention the entire year. Corey thought this was a great idea because he was tired of being good without reward—it seemed all the wretched kids were having the most fun.

Corey couldn't take his mind off of the party and kept daydreaming about delicious sundaes with hot fudge topping and whipped cream. During reading group, Corey leaned over to his group partner, Daniel, and told him the secret. Corey whispered so softly that Daniel misunderstood the secret. Daniel thought that Jamie was having a sundae party and kids had to be on their best behavior to be invited. Daniel was thrilled to be told a secret.

Back at Daniel's desk, his seat partner Matt asked Daniel what he was smiling about. Daniel wasn't a very good secret-keeper. He did not hesitate to tell Matt the great news. "There's going to be a party on Sunday and maybe you can go if Jamie likes you."

Matt wanted to go to the party so badly, but he wasn't sure if Jamie knew him. After school, Matt waited for Jamie outside of his classroom. When Jamie exited, Matt asked him, "Can I come to your birthday party on Sunday?"

Jamie looked at Matt curiously, "What are you talking about? I'm not having a birthday party! Where did you hear that? I told Corey the school was having a sundae party!"

Joe is ancient—I'd guess about 300 years old. When Joe was born, the Revolutionary War was just beginning and a kid's idea of fun was chasing squirrels and eating tree bark. Joe reads 50 books a day, and I'm not talking little books, either. I mean huge tomes, even longer than the telephone directory! These people had so much stuff in their garage that a worm couldn't even fit in to look around. And the place smelled like dusty socks had been kept there for 100 years. I thought my nose hairs were going to disintegrate. Joe must have gotten 1,000 books in his bag! The darn thing was heavier than an elephant in armor. I carried it over the mountains and through the woods back to Joe's house.

The common green iguana, scientifically known as Iguana iguana, is a reptile pet imported from South or Central America or raised in captivity.

Each reptile has requirements for moisture, temperature, hibernation, and diet. Iguanas are diurnal. Iguanas are prey for other animals.

A. Topic Sentence: Kites have been around for over two thousand years and have had many uses besides recreation.

Supporting Sentences: Kites are believed to have been invented in China or Korea about 200 BC. One of these earliest kite stories is about a famous Chinese general, Han Hsin. Han ordered his men to build a kite and to fly it over the Emperor's palace.

B. Topic Sentence: Rainforests are an important ecosystem.

Supporting Sentences: Rainforests are home to more than half of those species. Millions of forest-dwelling people around the world live in or depend on rainforests. Many of the world's important food crops, medicines, and animals come from rainforest species.

C. Topic Sentence: Boxing Day is a holiday celebrated in Britain, Australia, New Zealand, and Canada.

Supporting Sentences: It falls on December 26. The public observance of Boxing Day takes place on the following Monday if December 26 falls on a Saturday or Sunday. The traditional celebration of Boxing Day included giving money and other gifts to charitable institutions, needy individuals, and people in service jobs.

Topic Sentence: St. Augustine, Florida, is the oldest permanent European settlement on the North American continent.

Supporting Sentences: It was founded forty-two years before the English colony at Jamestown, Virginia, and fifty-five years before the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock in Massachusetts. Spanish explorer and treasure hunter Don Juan Ponce de Leon first sighted the mainland of North America on Easter, March 27, 1513. He claimed the land for Spain and named it La Florida, meaning "Land of Flowers". Topic Sentence: Menendez skillfully fulfilled his king's wishes.

Supporting Sentences: He quickly fortified the tiny village and named it St. Augustine. Making the most of brilliant military maneuvers, Menendez destroyed the French garrison on the St. John's River and, with the help of a tropical hurricane, also defeated the French fleet. With the coast of Florida firmly in Spanish hands, he set to work building the town, establishing missions, converting the Indians to his Church, and exploring the lush land.
