1) Write an hour-by-hour diary of a festival you went to or took part in. (AB page 8)

When I arrived in Damascus to celebrate Eid Al-Adha with my family, I couldn't wait to see my grandfather who was in Mecca. My family and some of my relatives gathered to welcome him and listen to him talking about his pilgrimage. After that some people began decorating the street. There were people waving flags and ribbons everywhere. I also began helping others who were preparing to give third of the meal which was traditional to the poor and homeless. Indeed, it was a nice day that came before the festival itself.

2) Write your own notes for a talk on a subject you know something about. (AB page 13)

I am going to tell you something about the gypsy people who live all over the world. Most of them live in the east of Europe and in the middle of Asia. They like to travel as they have no enthusiasm to any country they go to. They have certain crafts they practice wherever they are. They sing songs and rhymes they invented many centuries ago. On the other hand there is no religion to worship but they have their own tribal customs and traditions

3) Write a detailed description (real or imaginary) of a place you have visited on holiday. (AB page 18)

Since I was a child, I have always wanted to visit Egypt. I went there for a three-day trip last year. It is full of historical places. The most beautiful monuments I saw were the Pyramids and the Sphinx. Those wonderful feats have been standing there for thousands of years. I went to visit the museum to see the mummies. Of course, I didn't forget to travel along the Nile, the longest river in the world. I think Egypt is an ideal place to spend your holiday in. At last I believe that travel makes man wiser and younger.

4) Describe in detail a scene you can see from one of the windows in your home or school. (AB page 21)

One day I was looking out of my window in my home when I saw a beggar in front of the entrance. He was asking for food and money. Everything looked peaceful and calm but suddenly he began shouting angrily. On his left there was a little boy who looked scared. A man, walking down the street, asked the beggar why he was shouting. He answered that the little child was about to lose one of his coins the previous day, so people all around him in the street began laughing while others began cursing the man.

5) Write a description of an object that you think is useful of your age. (AB page 26)

This is a smart new mobile phone that allows you to talk to others as soon as you mention the name you want to talk to. You can also send your messages orally to convert them into written texts. It also has a digital camera and a 40 x 40 computer screen. The strange mobile can be folded and spread the way you like. This is perfect for you as it is a waterproof device. It can tell you what you want to know as soon as you say your question whatever it is.

6) Write about one of your TV programmes. (AB page 31)

Who Wants to be a Millionaire is my TV programme because it is international and depends on accurate knowledge and academic education. The cooler you are the more you win and gain money. The music that accompanies the programme can make you alert but nervous. It is on Wednesday evening at 10 o'clock. The presenter is as cunning as a fox and his facial expressions sometimes annoy and bother the guest. The last episode was really useful because most questions were about history and life matters. I like watching it and I advise you all to take part in it.

7) Describe something that belongs to someone in your family. Choose an item of clothing or jewellery, for example a hat, a pair of shoes or a ring. (AB page 39)

My older brother has got a mini computer that can store data and make different kinds of operations. It is very tiny but easy to use. He can just insert the number of his credit card and order things that he wants without going online. That computer can give him a ring to remind him of the important dates. He can get in touch with relatives, friends and business colleagues as soon as he mentions the name he wants to talk to. This magic device can convert oral messages into written texts. This waterproof mini computer can be folded and spread the way you like. It is a little bit expensive but can meet your needs. I advise you to buy it as soon as possible because it can make your lives easier.

8) Write a formal "thank you" letter (AB page 44)

Dear Mr Samer

I am writing to thank you for inviting me to your office last month. It was a nice visit to remember.

I highly appreciate your kindness in answering all my questions about the new firm you are going to run later. The information will be helpful to me as a student at university.

I would be very thankful if you pass my thanks to the company staff you are running now. Indeed they were very kind and helpful in explaining their work to me.

Yours sincerely

Shadi Hassan

9) Imagine you have the chance to interview someone you admire. It could be someone well-known or someone who is not famous at all. (AB page 49)

Ladies and gentlemen I am glad to remind you of the famous Russian surgeon, Michael Belay.

Q1: You are most welcome Mr Belay. Would you tell us when you start your career and what your famous achievements are, please?

Mr Belay: Well, I began as a doctor in 1937. During the World War II I was one of the surgeons who spent sleepless nights because the stream of wounded soldiers was endless. I was always ready to help the sick and wounded.

Q2: Do you remember an event that deeply touched your heart?

Mr Belay: I really was affected when one the wounded soldiers shouted in agony to let him die and take care of another injured soldier.

Q3: Can you remember how you felt when the war came to an end?

Mr Belay: Oh, first of all I felt that sleep can help but I really forgot it. I was also excited but angry with the disasters of that war.

Q4: And finally can I ask you about your plans for the future?

Mr Belay: I am from the past but my son might be the future that has no wars at all.

Q4: Would you like to add anything Mr Belay?

Mr Belay: I am to leave and others are to come because life never stops. Goodbye!
