Consider many important things when you design your products or services. In fact, colors are one of the most important of these things. A survey shows that color is the main reason for buying a product. Every year, companies spend millions of dollars on advertising. They want you to buy their products and their services, and they want you to remember their company name or brand. These companies use bright colors so that you will notice them, and they use different colors about them when you see their colors. Colors have different meanings. So, using the right color is very important.

Companies use bright colors because these colors are warm and cheerful. For example, McDonald's uses red and yellow. McDonald's hopes that when people see these colors, people will think of it as a friendly and casual company. Pizza Hut uses red, black and white. These are bright, happy colors. Panda Express uses red and yellow. Panda uses red pictures in its violent crime. On some news sites, over 50 percent of the news stories are about crime. Why is there such a focus on crime? It is because scary news articles are popular. However, online news sites do not give people a true idea of the level of danger in the world. Here is an interesting example. In 2018, a survey was done in the United Kingdom. It showed that the rate of violent crime went down by 9 percent. However, during that time, news stories about violent crime increased by 19 percent. This focus on crime gives people the wrong idea. People believe there is more crime than there really is. They think violent crime is common.

² The first story on news websites is usually a story about violent crime. On some news sites, over 50 percent of the news stories are about crime. Why is there such a focus on crime? It is because scary news articles are popular. However, online news sites do not give people a true idea of the level of danger in the world. Here is an interesting example. In 2018, a survey was done in the United Kingdom. It showed that the rate of violent crime went down by 9 percent in the United Kingdom during that time.

⁴ The media's focus on crime makes us believe the world is a more frightening place than it is. This fear makes us lonelier and less happy which has bad effects on our health. Studies show that we should learn to worry less. People should be careful and stay safe. However, the world around us is actually much safer than we think.

1 Companies consider many important things when they advertise their products or services. In fact, colors are the most important of these things. A survey showed that color is the main reason for buying a product. Every year, companies spend millions of dollars on advertising. They want you to buy their products and use their services, and they want you to remember their company name or brand. These companies use color so that you will notice them, and you will think about them when you see their colors. Colors can have different meanings. So, using the right color is very important.

2 Many companies use bright colors because these colors are warm and cheerful. For example, McDonald's uses red and yellow. McDonald's hopes that by using these colors, people will think of it as a friendly and social company. Pizza Hut uses red, black and yellow. They are bright, happy colors. Panda uses green and red. ² After studying all the choices for some time, you may choose one of these kinds of coffee. Your choice might not make you happy. Why? There were too many possibilities. Maybe you missed important information. Maybe there was a better product you didn't see. You made a decision, but maybe it wasn't the best decision.

⁴ Why is there so much variety in today's supermarkets? Shoppers like choices and companies know that shoppers pay more for specialized products. Shoppers like products that are made for a special purpose; for example, a cream to make your skin feel clear or a toothpaste to make your teeth white. Companies make many different products in order to meet many different needs.

⁶ How do customers decide which product to buy? They should look for more information in order to make good decisions. Therefore, companies know shoppers want information, so they give it online. They give it in stores. They give it in product labels. Shoppers also spend hours on shopping websites. They research products and compare prices. They are "smart
