She withdrew to a remote place. The pains of childbirth drove her to the trunk of a palm tree. " I wish I had died before this, and had been forgotten and out of sight!" Mary said. She had known that she was going to be tested with the birth. Her people would not assist her, and they would not believe her story. After she was known as a devout worshipper among them, they now thought that she had turned into a bad woman. But a voice cried to her from beneath, "Don't grieve!" She was asked to shake the trunk of the tree towards herself, so that fresh ripe dates would fall upon her. Allah blessed her by giving her food and drink. Thus, she could eat, drink and rejoice. She went to her people carrying her child. They said, "O Mary! How could you do such a strange thing! Your father was not a bad man, nor was your mother an unchaste woman. That day, she vowed a fast, not to speak to any human being. Therefore, she pointed to him. Her people said: "How can we talk to one who is a child in the cradle?" He said: " verily, I am a servant of Allah, He has given me the Scripture and made me a prophet."

Allah has created man in the best form and structure in order to build this world generation after another. We are provided with a creative mind, a sensitive soul and a powerful body. It is a mixture full of potential and capable of making a lot of duties every day. They are with us as trusts which we should look after in the best possible ways and in accordance with Allah's commands. Men and women stand side by side to achieve the target of their existence. They complete each other when they follow the Sunnah of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH). The mother of believers, Aisha (May Allah be pleased with her) said many times that she used to race with the Prophet. This shows that exercising reinforces family bonds and indicates that physical exercising is available for both men and women. Muslims are fully qualified to be the best in sports. They are well trained to respect others and follow rules, and they are also used to group work. A good example of today is Mr. Muhammad Salah.

Science, technology, and other fields of knowledge developed rapidly during the Islamic golden age. Time measuring devices became essential for Muslims because they highly appreciated time. The development of clocks, mechanical clocks, and digital clocks reveal an exciting story of engineering and fine technology. In 807 AD, Haroun Al-Rasheed, sent Charlemagne, the king of Franks, a water clock. Inside that clock, there were twelve horsemen. Each hour, a horseman steps out of a window. When it is twelve o'clock, the twelve horsemen appear together. The West went through a miserable period of ignorance at that time. Charlemagne men thought that the clock was inhabited by a demon so, they destroyed it. To their surprise, they found nothing except its initial parts. It is said that Charlemagne has been ashamed of what they did. He brought skilled workers to fix the clock, but they couldn't. From the sundial to digital clock, the East and the West have been working hard to adjust their time.

The very first step that makes a Muslim positive and effective in society is the belief in God, the first pillar of faith. The numerous times in a day when a Muslim raises his finger and bears witness that there is no god but Allah and Muhammad is His prophet (PBUH) increase faith. It is something to be spoken in words, to be believed in within the heart, and to be put into action. Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) said that faith had seventy-odd branches, the greatest of which is to say, there is no god but Allah, and the lowest of which is to remove an obstacle from the road. In between, there are lots of actions that reflect real faith practically in the community. To believe in God is to believe that He is watching us in every second. Angels are other creatures that never disobey God, but we are created to choose our way. They are perfect examples for us to believe in the unseen.

Choose the right answer a , b, or c (40m):

the belief in God makes a Muslim positive and effective in a- community b- Angels c- branches

Zayd Bin Thabit was one of the remarkable Companions who gave much attention to learning, particularly the memorisation of the Qur'an. When the Prophet (PBUH) felt confident of Zayd's abilities, he entrusted him with recording the Holy Qur'an. Whenever revelation would come down to the Prophet (PBUH), he would often call upon Zayd to come with his ink pot and record the revelation. Later on, Umar and Abu Bakr (May Allah be pleased with them) called upon Zayd.

"You are a wise young man," said Abu Bakr "and we trust you because you have written down the revelation for the Messenger of Allah, (PBUH). Therefore, put together the Qur'an into one book." Zayd said, "I felt as if I had been asked to move a mountain." Zayd completed the task by gathering written texts and minds who had memorised the Book.
