

-is the term used to describe established facts that are not attributable to a particular person or authority.
- Old knowledge
 - Wide knowledge
 - Common knowledge
 - Specific knowledge
- *39. Many instances of can be traced back to the note-taking stage.
- data analysis
 - plagiarism
 - publication
 - the participants
40. can be an extremely helpful exercise in clarifying your own understanding.
- data analysis
 - data collection
 - speech synthesis
 - paraphrasing
41. can be an alternative practice to quoting, but still requires citation and referencing, though not quotation marks.
- Writing up
 - Research hypothesis
 - Measuring of variables
 - Paraphrasing
42. The ideal number of words of a good literature review is
- half of the whole research.
 - a quarter of the whole research
 - two thirds of the whole research.
 - a third of the whole research
43. The strategy means that the participants of a research can speak aloud any idea that comes to their minds.
- "think ahead"
 - "think aloud"
 - "think silently"
 - "think quickly"
44. In the, the researcher can ask the interviewees some more questions in addition to the questions he/she has already prepared.
- questionnaire
 - semi-structured interview
 - survey
 - structured interview

26. In the _____, the researcher writes the list of books, articles and other resources which he/she used in that research.

- a. independent variable
- b. dependent variable
- c. bibliography
- d. abstract

27. _____ can contain copies of questionnaires and interview questions that you used in your research.

- a. The bibliography
- b. The appendices
- c. The measures of centrality
- d. The abstract

28. The topic should be one which _____ your interest throughout the period you work on it.

- a. excites and stimulates your intellectual curiosity and which explains
- b. soothes and stimulates your intellectual curiosity and which trains
- c. excites and stimulates your intellectual curiosity and which retains
- d. heightens and stimulates your intellectual curiosity and which strains

29. The term "authorship" refers to the _____ such as books, articles, images, etc.

- a. abduction and motor trip of Maria and celestial material
- b. conduction and friendship of Sofia and potential, material
- c. production and ownership of ideas and intellectual material
- d. construction and strip of Karet and ineffectual material

When we write a research, we must always _____

- a. acknowledge and give no credit to any of our sources.
- b. acknowledge and give full credit to all our sources.
- c. acknowledge and give full credit to some of our important sources.
- d. challenge and discredit all our sources.

_____ you have to be credible and show how exactly you _____ your research without any hidden help from other people.

- a. _____
- b. _____
- c. _____
- d. _____

- b. conforming to disagreed anorexic panderers.
c. conforming to agreed anesthetic slanderers.
d. conforming to agreed academic standards.
33. Students are; otherwise, they would be risking their research assignments.
- strongly advised to purchase and copy essays from fake researchers
 - strongly advertised to copy images from honest-websites
 - strongly advised not to purchase or copy essays from cheat-websites
 - fairly advertised not to appear on TV or on marketing websites
34. The essence of the is to review the previous research, to criticize the methods previous authors used, and then to tell the connections between the previous studies and your research.
- data analysis
 - variance
 - literature review
 - research publication
35. Choose the correct sentence
- In research, it is recommended that the researcher starts his/her research from where others have started.
 - In research, it is preferred that the researcher starts his/her research from where others have stopped.
 - In research, it is preferred that the researcher starts his/her research by analyzing the data before anything else.
 - In research, it is preferred that the researcher starts his/her research by writing the conclusion chapter.
36. Choose the correct sentence.
- Data analysis takes place before data analysis.
 - Data analysis takes place at the same time of data collection.
 - Data analysis takes place after data collection.
 - Data collection takes place after data analysis.

..... involves something new, some new ideas, or that the topic has been approached in a different way.

- The abstract of a research means that the research
- The literature review of a research means that the research
- The research

45. If we have a topic like "Female students can be better than male students in linguistic studies", the Independent variable of this topic can be
- politics.
 - gender.
 - food.
 - bloodshed.
46. The is a report in which a researcher asks the participants to write everything that they did during a period of time.
- survey report
 - diary report
 - think aloud report
 - interview report
47. Paraphrasing can refer to
- the practice of putting someone else's ideas into your own words.
 - the practice of putting your own books into someone else's ideas.
 - the practice of documenting someone else's ideas.
 - the practice of analyzing someone else's questionnaire.
48. In preparing questionnaires, don't like to write their names and others reject to answer the questions because of this.
- participants' names can be optional because some people
 - researchers' flames must be optional because some researchers
 - participants' names must be written because some people
 - particular games must be national because all people
49. Choose the correct sentence.
- The less the variables, the less focused the research is.
 - The more the variables, the more focused the research is.
 - The less the variables, the more focused the research is.
 - The more the verbs in the abstract, the more accurate the results are.
50. In the, the participants need to just circle their answers.
- interview
 - data analysis
 - closed questionnaires
 - semi-structured interview

13. is the act of copying someone else's work and using, presenting or publishing it as your own.

- Socialism
- Nationalism
- Pragmatism
- Plagiarism

14. Whenever another person's work is copied and republished without an appropriate reference or citation, it is considered

- excellent research.
- authorship.
- documented work.
- plagiarism.

15. If the is well written, it can make the readers want to learn more about the research.

- plagiarism
- abstract
- variable
- the participant

16. In the cross-sectional method, the researcher can observe at one point in time.

- different groups of people
- the same group of people
- the same soup of beetles
- the same scoop of needles

17. The variable that affects other variable is called the

- Independent variable.
- dependent variable.
- dependent invariable.
- Independent invariable.

18. In research, we cannot manipulate dependent variable because we need to measure the effect of the

- dependent variable on them.
- independent variable on them.
- defendants on them.
- descendants on them.

19. In the, the researcher gives the participants some sentences and asks them to judge whether these are grammatically correct sentences or not.

- criticality judgment task
- grammaticality judgment task
- grammaticality assignment task
- grammaticality judgment task

- a. research
- b. theory
- c. hypothesis
- d. prediction

17. The _____ is a statement that describes or explains a relationship among variables.

- a. research question
- b. answer
- c. hypothesis
- d. prediction

18. The key to the success of an empirical research investigation is to state clearly the _____.

- a. research questions and/or the name of the researcher
- b. money you will spend on your research and/or the people you will meet
- c. research questions and/or hypotheses
- d. time you will take and/or the grant you will get started on

19. The _____ of a research can include a summary of the whole research especially the findings.

- a. bibliography
- b. conclusion
- c. data collection
- d. participants

20. _____ can refer to the category that an experimenter chooses to represent a whole set of scores for one group of cases on one variable.

- a. Presentation
- b. Measures of variation
- c. Measures of centrality
- d. Measures of difference

21. The _____ is the variable that can affect the outcome.

- a. dependent variable
- b. independent variable
- c. bibliography

- The term "....." refers to the recognition that certain research works are the product of the work of another identified person.
- judgement
 - abolishment
 - acknowledgement
 - accomplishment
8. The termmeans that we take the exact words from the source and then put them into quotations marks.
- castration
 - quotation
 - carnation
 - deflation
9. The term means that one can retell the meaning of an idea in one's own words; yet the original author has to be referred to.
- hypothesis
 - quotation
 - paraphrase
 - research question
10. One example of is when a researcher chooses specific examples, participants, situations, etc. because he/she likes them.
- bias in research
 - originality in research
 - data collection
 - data analysis
- 11..... means showing how your research relates to current research and debates.
- Editing your research
 - Contextualizing your research
 - Documenting your research
 - Writing-up your research
12. The research question of an original research topic is usually a question that
- everybody thinks of as common knowledge.
 - has not been answered before in the literature.
 - you ask at the last part of your research.
 - is impossible to answer

2. The term "research" refers to the systematic involving study of materials and sources in order to
- establish a building and buy new apartment.
 - establish fairy tales and reach old conclusions.
 - establish facts and reach new conclusions.
 - establish a factory and make more profits.

- The "method" of a research refers to
- general procedures for supporting students who need help.
 - articulate procedures for destroying someone's reputation.
 - particular procedures for accomplishing or approaching something.
 - particular procedures for demotivating or approving something.

3. Choose the group of terms that can indicate research types.
- syntax, semantics, pragmatics, and morphology.
 - gender, number, person, and case.
 - descriptive, explanatory ethnographic, and experimental.
 - tomato, potato, carrots, and cucumber.

4. Choose the correct sentence.
- The design of a research refers to the illogical structure of the inquiry.
 - The design of a research refers to the political stature of the inquiry.
 - The design of a research refers to the social sticker of the inquiry.
 - The design of a research refers to the logical structure of the inquiry.

- An acceptable involves rephrasing the idea entirely, whilst still capturing its essence and meaning.
- abstract
 - research question
 - paraphrase
 - research hypothesis

6. Choose the correct sentence
- The cross-sectional research involves the study of something at different points in time.
 - The longitudinal research involves the study of something at different points in time.
 - The longitudinal research involves the study of something at one single point in time.
 - The longitudinal rebirth involves the study of something within few seconds.